Tunnel? 71% of respondents say NO!

Residents of lower Vancouver Island and the Gulf Islands place great store on retaining the "quality of life" in the region.

That was the predominant comment from readers who sent in ballots for the Times' survey on whether there should be a fixed link with the mainland — a tunnel or combination of bridges and tunnels — as proposed by Science Minister Pat McGeer and former Socred cabinet minister Sam Bawlf.

The proposal was turned down by 71 per cent of the respondents, 1,214 out of a total of 1,712 valid ballots. Of the 498 readers in favor, the most common comment was that it was "time for us to join the 20th Century" or words to that effect, followed by complaints about the long ferry waits and the difficulty of getting on and off the island.

While the quality of life argument was the strongest factor in the negative vote, judging from letters and notes accompanying the ballots, a strong feeling also surfaced that there were more important priorities for the provincial government to look after before spending billions of dollars on an fixed island-mainland link. Many readers, for instance, stated it was more important to improve health care, education, needs of elderly citizens. The safety factor was also mentioned by many people concerned about earthquakes or the possiblity of collisions in tunnels, or the chance of freighters ramming a floating bridge in heavy fog.

We asked readers to mail or bring in original ballots only and thus quite a few hundred written or duplicated ballots were not counted. This was done to minimize the risk of blocs of pro or anti factions from skewing the result of the poll. In fact, one batch of 40 ballots, all obviously duplicated on the same machine and all marked "no", was spotted. By a rough estimate, if duplicated ballots had been counted it would have raised the "no" vote to about 75 per cent, but it would not have been a fair representation of public opinion.

One amusing aspect of the vote counting was to note that about a dozen envelopes contained two ballots, one from husband and one from wife, who disagreed on the issue, indicating there may be a few good family arguments raging in Victoria over the issue.

The Times is very pleased with the strong response to this poll from readers and will forward the results to Premier Bill Bennett with the reminder that 1,712 people felt strongly enough about the issue to take the trouble to clip the coupon and spend money on postage, or take time to bring it in to our office.

Should the province build a fixed link to the mainland?

ICBC chief quits

VANCOUVER (CP) — Robbie Sherrell, president and chief executive officer of the Insurance Corp. of B.C., announced today he is resigning for personal reasons, effective, May 31.

Sherrell said he plans to return to his home in Oklahoma to spend time with his family before looking for a new job.

"I'm not going to a corporation or leaving to go back to ITT (International Telephone and Telegraph) or Hartford," he told a news conference. "What I do plan to do is look into some personal activities, some personal investments, even a small business, perhaps."

The controversial American was hired two years ago by the provincial government, at an annual salary of $80,000.

Kramer runaway favorite

There are more than 6,000 entries in the annual Visit the Stars contest — and half of them are predicting a strong showing by Kramer vs. Kramer when the Oscars are handed out tonight.

About 3,000 of the entries have Kramer vs. Kramer as best movie, and its star Dustin Hoffman as best actor, along with Sally Field of Norma Rae as best actress.

If any one of the three misses, there will only be a handful of correct entries in the barrel when the drawing for the grand prize is made at 7 p.m. Wednesday at the Odeon theatre.

Aid promised on loan rates

OTTAWA (CP) — The Trudeau government today promised help for homeowners hardest hit by "unacceptably high" interest rates and limited assistance to farmers, fishermen and small businessmen.

The speech from the throne opening the 32nd Parliament, read in the ornate Senate chamber by Gov.-Gen. Ed Schreyer, also contains a strong plea for national unity and repeats pledges by earlier Trudeau governments for constitutional reform and greater Canadian control of the economy.

Specifics were lacking as, for the first time, the Liberal government did not hold a background briefing for reporters.

Opposition leader Joe Clark called it "a very interesting list" of proposals but criticized it for not promising fast action to introduce a budget.

"We will be pressing for a full statement on economic policy before the end of May," he said. The Liberals have indicated a budget may not come until the fall.

NDP leader Ed Broadbent said that in promising action on high interest rates and Canadian control of industry, the Liberals were merely addressing problems they had helped to create in the last decade.

"I have no more confidence now that they will do for the 1980s what they failed completely to do in the 1970s," he said.

He said it also appeared clear that help for higher interest rates would be extremely limited in scope. Tens of thousands of homeowners and small businessmen would get nothing, he said.

There is a special commitment to Quebecers that a vote in the coming sovereignty referendum rejecting sovereignty for that province would lead to constitutional reform.

The strongly-nationalistic speech also commits the new Liberal administration to tighter controls on the activities of foreign-owned companies.

Included in the legislative priorities of the Trudeau government is a $35-a-month increase in the guaranteed income supplement for about 1.3 million of the country's poorest pensioners — a promise made in the election campaign — from the current $153.35 a month.

And for the first time in a throne speech there is a renewed promise to remove criminal penalties for marijuana use.

In addition to home mortgage help, the government also promises the ceiling for lower-rate loans under the Small Business Loans Act as well as the Farm Improvement Loans Act will be raised to $100,000 and the loan ceiling under the Fisheries Improvement Loans Act will be raised to $150,000.

The Liberals also have apparently abandoned a goal of the previous Clark government to have energy self-sufficiency in Canada by 1990.

Highlights

Here are the highlights of the Speech from the Throne opening the 32nd Parliament:

— Homeowners hit by "unacceptably high interest rates" to get government help in renegotiating mortgages.

— Small businessmen and farmers to be eligible for increased low-interest government loans up to $100,000 from $75,000 and other unspecified assistance programs.

— Old-age income supplements for 1.3 million needy pensioners, most of them single women, to be increased by $35 a month from $153.35 by July 1. National Pension Conference to be held in the fall.

— Criminal penalties for simple possession of marijuana to be removed.

— "Made-in-Canada" oil price to be lower than world price; gasoline prices to consumers to be lower than those proposed by Joe Clark's Conservative government last December.

— Budget of Petro-Canada, the government-owned oil company, to be increased so it can buy oil directly from foreign countries.

— Fuel-efficiency standards to be set for automobiles to encourage energy conservation.

— Standards for home insulation to become more stringent to promote energy conservation.

— Half of petroleum industry in Canada to be owned by Canadians by 1990 under unspecified program of government incentives.

— Government to assist Canadians in buying out foreign-owned companies in this country as part of Liberal promise to promote economic nationalism.

— Post Office to be turned into Crown corporation, as proposed in Liberal legislation nearly two years ago.

— Government to work to defeat Quebec referendum on sovereignty-association and to interpret a "no" vote as a directive to rebuild Canadian federation. No word on what a "yes" vote would mean.

Dewey's World

"Can we quote you as being 'very enthusiastic' about a tunnel to the mainland, Mr. Bawlf?"

Iran is 'ready for world war'

Times News Services

TEHRAN — Iran is "ready for a world war" if the United States starts one because of the American hostage crisis, says Hassan Habibi, spokesman for the ruling Revolutionary Council.

Habibi said in an interview carried by Radio Tehran today Iranians are not bothered by the threat of a world war because "we have the other world" — an apparent reference to heaven. "God will feed us," he added.

Meanwhile, a group which included Red Cross representatives began a visit to American hostages in the occupied U.S. Embassy here. A student said the militant students holding the embassy were forced by the government to accept the Red Cross visitors.

If the U.S. is serious about world war, it should seriously consider whether it is worth surviving or not, Habibi said.

Iranians were confident in the other world but those who were skeptical about such a world should consider whether they wanted to destroy the earth.

Olympic boycott pushed

Time News Services

Fresh from a home-court victory, backers of a boycott of the Summer Olympics today turned their attention to an international effort to determine how many countries will join the United States and stay away from the Moscow Games.

The U.S. Olympic Committee supported President Carter and voted by a margin of 2-to-1 Saturday in Colorado Springs, Colo., not to field an Olympic team for the first time in modern history.

Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau's government is expected to announce its decision soon.

Dick Pound, president of the Canadian Olympic Association, said his group has decided to send a team to Moscow, and the ball now is in the Canadian government's court.

Douglas Roby, one of two Americans on the International Olympic Committee, said the organization responsible for the Games might cancel the competition if the U.S. wins the support of major states.

Other American athletes have expressed fears that the decision may kill the Olympic movement.

Albania, Honduras, China, Chile, Egypt, Haiti, Kenya, Malawi, Malaysia, Papua New Guinea, Sudan and Zaire have announced they will not attend the Games — some of them in support of Carter and some of them for anti-Soviet reasons of their own.

Others have indicated they will follow a U.S. lead and many European states are awaiting a pan-European stand.

"If they can get the important ones, it is my opinion the IOC will cancel the Games," said Roby, mentioning Britain, France, West Germany, Australia, New Zealand and Canada. "The IOC doesn't want to see any half-baked Games."

New Zealand opposes a boycott, and the British Olympic Association, despite strong government support for Carter, has decided to field a team. But Australian Prime Minister Malcolm Fraser said he believes an effective boycott will emerge.

The fielding of teams is left to the national Olympic committees, which are independent and responsible only to the IOC.

The New York Daily News, quoting unnamed sources, reported today that the National Broadcasting Co. will announce today or Tuesday that it will drop its planned coverage of the Summer Olympic Games in Moscow. Jim Murray, a publicist for NBC, would neither confirm nor deny the report.

Report raps poor tourism planning

By NORMAN GIDNEY

A special report on B.C.'s tourism industry criticizes the provincial government for failing to plan ahead.

It also knocks the poor quality of tourist accommodation and services in much of the province.

The confidential study by three Vancouver consulting firms says if tourism is to keep on growing in the province, then the industry will have to alter its present emphasis on the "rubber tire" market and the automobile-oriented tourist.

Nothing less than a major shift in government policy and the way private tourist businesses operate are recommended in the report for the next 20 years.

The study says that the government has not given tourism the attention it deserves.

It says government has shunted the tourism portfolio from ministry to ministry, deprived it of staff and had it concentrate mostly on research, marketing and promotion while neglecting long-term planning and development.

It also has some uncomplimentary things to say about the quality of tourist accommodation and services in parts of the province. After noting that most attractions and tourist destinations are on Vancouver Island or in the southwestern corner of B.C., it states:

"The accommodation base of the remainder of the province with the exception of the regional urban centres such as Kamloops and Prince George, can best be described as fragmented, unorganized, and substandard in relation to other competing areas in North America.

"Similarly the visual appeal of several urban centres throughout the province is very low due to haphazard or poorly planned main highway routes. A greater degree of planning control of visual and aesthetic factors will be required, especially in those towns and cities wishing to maintain or attract tourism industry development."

The report also says that staff of Tourism B.C., the government department concerned with the travel industry, have not paid much attention to the need for resource planning and development.

"Traditionally, this attitude is typical of virtually all government tourism organizations.

Non-binding way out of the bind?

Provincial government nurses say there will be no further strike action in their contract dispute if Labor Minister Jack Heinrich appoints an industrial inquiry commission.

But because of the nurses' demand that any recommendations be non-binding, it was uncertain today whether the minister would take such action.

Heinrich said Friday he would appoint a commission if he could get assurances from the parties that it would lead to productive mediation and a contract settlement.

But the government's chief negotiator, Mike Davision, said today such assurance is not possible because under the nurses' conditions the commission's recommendations could be rejected.

He said the only way the commission can resolve the dispute is if any recommendations are binding.

Heinrich was not available this morning but in an interview from his Prince George home during the weekend, he said he will not appoint an inquiry commission unless he is assured it will have a reasonable chance of success.

He also noted it is not up to him but up to the parties to decide if the recommendations will be binding. He added that any such decision does not have to be made in advance but can be made during the commission's hearings.

"I want to be assured that we're not going through another level of bargaining, and it is just being used for the purpose of taking the heat off," Heinrich said. "That bothers me a little bit."

However, he said, there are indications that "some good mediation might just resolve a couple of problems."

The 2,700 psychiatric and registered community health nurses conducted rotating strikes last week but the walkouts did not affect direct patient care.

One-legged marathon from Atlantic to Pacific

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — A man who lost his left leg to cancer three years ago says he hopes to run about 50 kilometres a day on his way across Canada. He began in St. John's on Saturday.

Terry Fox, 21 of Port Coquitlam, said in an interview that he expects to reach Vancouver in late September or early October.

"The most difficult part of the trip will be from here to Halifax because I'll have problems repairing or replacing my artificial leg."

He said an artificial leg isn't made for running and he expects one to last about seven days.

The War Amputees Association of Canada have said it would repair his artificial leg and provide him with new ones throughout the marathon.

He said he decided about 14 months ago to run from Newfoundland to British Columbia to raise money for the Canadian Cancer Society and he has been training ever since.

During the run he plans to take a break after each 16 kilometres. A van, supplied by a major Canadian manufacturer and equipped with sleeping quarters, will accompany him.

April 13 mark broken

Victorians got a touch of summer Sunday as a 37-year-old temperature record tumbled.

The mercury climbed to 19.6° C., beating out the previous April 13 high of 18.9 set in 1943.

The sunny treat was short-lived, however, as unsettled conditions returned today and are likely to continue Tuesday.

Cloud and showers are the order of the day with some sunny periods in the forecast for Tuesday afternoon.

Atoll order: super-rats outwit Big N

AGANA, Guam (Reuter) — Researchers on the tiny Pacific atoll of Enewetak said today they had discovered a population of rats apparently thriving on the heavily radioactive-contaminated island of Runit.

They said the rats may be descendents of an underground rat population that had survived more than 40 atomic bomb tests and the ensuing radioactive fallout, which officials have said would make the island unsafe for human beings for 25,000 years.

"We have not found any dramatic mutations or abnormalities yet and the rat population seems to be healthy," said Steve Vessey, a researcher on Enewetak.

He said the rats may have survived 43 atomic bomb tests by borrowing underground.

The Enewetakese who were evacuated before the tests returned to the atoll last week after a two-year, $100-million cleanup.

Only three of the atoll's 40 islands, however, have been declared safe.

Ambushed Russians killed

Times News Services

PESHAWAR — Afghan insurgents reported today that they killed 600 Soviet soldiers in an elaborate ambush, using dynamite to trap them in a gorge.

Up to 40 vehicles were buried in the ensuing landslide, the insurgents said.

In another battle report, insurgents said they occupied part of Chagasarei, capital of eastern Kunar province, for two days last week and set fire to part of the town.

For the last month, Afghan government forces backed by Soviet armor, aircraft and paratroopers have been moving up the Kunar Valley destroying insurgent strongholds and sealing the border passes with Pakistan.

The Kunar offensive was the first major assault against Moslem tribesmen fighting to topple Kabul's Kremlin-backed government since the Soviet Union's military intervention in Afghanistan late last year.

Insurgent spokesmen in Peshawar, their headquarters in Pakistan's frontier region with Afghanistan, said that on April 1 the Soviet-Afghan armored column was moving on the mining centre of Dara-e-Suf in Samangan province, about 100 kilometres southeast of Mazari Sharif near the Oxus River frontier with the Soviet Union.

The region has been in the hands of the anti-government insurgents for more than a year.

The spokesmen in Peshawar said the armored column totalled 300 vehicles and was advancing to capture Dara-e-Suf.

The bulk of the column had entered the Dara-e-Suf gorge when the insurgents set off dynamite charges sunk in the surrounding hills.

The landslide buried the rear vehicles and trapped the remainder of the column. The insurgents attacked the trapped Soviet soldiers from the hills, they said, killing 600.

Meanwhile, in Washington, Deputy U.S. State Secretary Warren Christopher said Sunday that Soviet generals in Afghanistan are asking for still more troops because of difficulties encountered, even though Moscow already has more than 100,000 men.

"The Soviet Union is having a great deal of difficulty in Afghanistan," Christopher said in an interview on ABC televisions Issues and Answers.

30-chinook limit backed by board

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Sport Fishing Advisory Board of B.C. voted Sunday to support an annual personal bag limit of 30 fish on chinook salmon.

The resolution was sparked by declining stocks of wild chinook, the board said in a news release.

Pressure mounts for non-union construction

VANCOUVER (CP) — The use of non-union workers in the B.C. construction industry is increasing and industry officials say this will continue to grow as long as developers and contractors seek ways to reduce expenses.

Chuck McVeigh, president of the Construction Labor Relations Association, says the non-union trend is rampant in B.C.

"There is a growing indication that more and more work is being done by non-union people, especially outside the Lower Mainland where union business agents aren't so plentiful," McVeigh said.

However, Roy Gautier, president of the B.C. and Yukon Building Trades Council, which reports slow progress on contract talks for its 17 construction unions, says organized labor in most of B.C. is holding its own.

Gautier said unionism is suffering in some areas, such as the Okanagan, a booming area with an abundance of developers. Creston and parts of Vancouver Island also are having problems, he said.

B.C. Construction Association area managers say about 70 per cent of Kamloops' construction contracts are union, the same as 10 years ago. About 65 per cent of construction around Cranbrook in southeastern B.C. is union, slightly more than in the past.

Peter Sorenson, association manager in Prince George, said business in the Peace River area is increasing — along with non-union construction contracts.

"I don't see a radical shift but non-union work is definitely growing in total volume," Sorenson said.

Current high interest rates haven't curbed 1980 construction because financial arrangements for the projects were finalized last year. However, association head Frank Reder said the industry is expected to sag next year.

"That's when unions are really going to sit up and take notice of the amount of work being done under non-union contracts," said one official.

Gautier said a $3.50-an-hour over-all increase is needed in order to patch up the damage done by wage and price controls. The current average hourly wage for the 40,000 B.C. workers is $12.42 plus another $1.71 in benefits.

Gautier said the construction trades were hardest hit by the controls and workers lost ground relative to other large groups. They are also unemployed for an average 3.5 months a year.

Meanwhile, in Alberta members of the Alberta Construction Labor Relations Association, are financially supporting an organization of contractors called the Right-To-Work Association.

In the U.S., only half of the 8,300 members of the Associated General Contractors of America are unionized, compared with 80 per cent three years ago.

First aid manual faulty, says doctor

VANCOUVER (CP) — The president of the Canadian Association of Emergency Physicians says the instruction manual used to train industrial first aid attendants in B.C. is inaccurate, incomplete, outdated and confusing.

Dr. Al Scholtz, an emergency physician at St. Paul's Hospital, has released a critique of the manual listing more than 100 specific faults.

Bad advice, Scholtz says, can aggravate injuries or even kill.

The manual is published by the Workers' Compensation Board and is used as the basic text in industrial first aid courses. Each year about 15,000 people write exams to get the industrial first aid ticket.

A WCB spokesman said a major revision of the manual is set to begin in June.

The manual was first published in 1969 and has been revised four times since, the latest in 1979.

Some of the faults cited include:

— Reassurance that although scalp lacerations may bleed freely they require little attention. Says Scholtz: "That's very wrong. I've seen a person die just from lacerations of the scalp."

— A statement that bleeding cuts tend to cleanse themselves was termed "garbage" by Scholtz.

— Illustrations of an airway used for mouth-to-mouth resuscitation that has been "banned by the (B.C.) heart association."

— An illustration of a pressure point to control bleeding that is "almost impossible to find."

— A statement that carbon monoxide poisoning symptoms are marked when they are often "very, very subtle."

— Complete lack of instructions for preservation of accidentally amputated body parts.

Heritage river system proposed for 1984

VANCOUVER (CP) — B.C. will work with the federal government in setting up a Canadian heritage river system, delegates to an environmental seminar were told during the weekend.

The commitment was made in a letter by Lands Minister Jim Chabot to federal Environment Minister John Roberts.

The seminar, Riverfest '80, was sponsored by the Outdoor Recreation Council of B.C. and brought together both specialists and lay people to discuss developments in river management.

Ted Will, chief of the planning division of Parks Canada at Ottawa, outlined steps to form a federal-provincial pact for protection of rivers in national parks and natural and historical areas.

Will said planning for the Agreement for Recreational and Conservation program began in 1968 and the target for implementation is 1984, but that the necessary input for federal legislation must be received by 1983.

Tentative police pact

VANCOUVER (CP) — A tentative agreement has been reached between the Vancouver Policemen's Union and the city police board after two days of talks.

Union president Ken Johnstone said Sunday agreement was reached late Friday. Talks had resumed Thursday following the union's rejection March 28 of a proposed two-step salary and benefits increase of 13 per cent.

The 929-member union had been seeking an 11.27-per-cent wage increase retroactive to Jan. 1 instead of at six-month intervals as recommended by an industrial inquiry commission.

Shopping Act rapped

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Vancouver Board of Trade is asking the provincial government to scrap its Holiday Shopping Act which gives regional districts and municipalities control over store hours on Sundays and statutory holidays.

Bruce Pepper, the board's managing director, said Sunday the board feels the administration of shopping hours should rest with the provincial government.

The board has sent a telegram outlining its position to Attorney-General Allan Williams, who introduced the legislation last week.

Boater feared lost

PRINCE RUPERT (CP) — A young boy was missing and feared drowned following a boating accident in the Kitkatla area, about 56 kilometres south of this north coast community.

A search and rescue spokesman said Sunday the youth was presumed to have fallen overboard from his four-metre pleasure craft while on a trip from Kitkatla to Prince Rupert.

The boy's boat was found on the beach with the throttle wide open and the gear-shift in a forward gear.

No name was released.

Forest hazard up

PRINCE GEORGE (CP) — A British Columbia forest official says 1980 could be one of the worst years on record for forest fires in B.C.

Jim Hailey, regional protection officer for the forest service in Prince George, said the forest fire season officially opens on Tuesday and this year is expected to be one of the driest in the province in the last decade.

Mortgage protest draws 100

VANCOUVER (CP) — A movement to press the federal government to roll back interest rates gathered steam Sunday at a public meeting called by the Association to Control Mortgage rates.

The association, founded March 19, wants the federal government to freeze existing mortgages for the next 18 months and start a large-scale program to build homes through Canada Mortgage and Housing Corp. mortgages at the eight-per-cent level.

Copies of a petition to be sent to Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau were circulated and a resolution was passed to ask a federal government representative to meet with the association.

Chairman Bruce Yorke told the audience of 100 that the only way to get the message across is to band together and protest the government's inaction on the Bank of Canada's floating interest rate.

Yorke said so far Ottawa has expressed little interest in the association's proposals.

B.C. jet plant loses to Que.

VANCOUVER (CP) — Plans for a $50-million airplane engine parts plant in Mission were scrapped because a Quebec site was favored when the federal government awarded a $2.3-billion contract for 137 F18A jet fighters last week, says a representative of B.C.'s aviation industry.

Geoff Artz said during the weekend that the loss of the contract may mean the death of plans to build an aerospace industrial park in the Fraser Valley community.

"We lost the Mission plant — it was between Quebec and ourselves," said Artz, who had been talking to McDonnell Douglas, the aerospace company that won the contract. "The rationale that put it into Quebec does make sense, however."

Artz said a number of factors favored Quebec as a site. He said there is only one other plant like the one proposed and it is situated in the northeastern U.S. about an hour's drive from Quebec's border.

Quebec also has department of regional economic expansion funding to locate in Montreal where the plant now will be built.

Artz said the new plant will have annual sales of $20 million and the loss to Mission is quite appreciable.

"Quebec put tremendous pressure on McDonnell Douglas — there was a lot at stake," he said. "There have been really strong efforts to take a couple of our projects away from us and I have been working to stop that happening."

Artz said the Mission industrial park now is on shaky ground.

The old ways

The native Indians grouped in 560 bands across Canada know the old Liberals really are back in Ottawa. They didn't need headlines. The new minister of Indian Affairs, John Munro has wasted no time in telling the bands that what was good for former Liberal administrations is good for him, regardless of the effects on them.

Munro has reversed a trend of the short-lived Conservative government and pulled in the purse strings. From now on local Indian governments must have their budgets approved by Ottawa; money will be allocated every three months. If the Indians don't like it, then either federal funding will be cut or band administration will be assumed by the Department of Indian Affairs. The bands have until April 30 to comply.

About half the nation's Indian bands have, with justification, complained loudly about the severity of the new rules. They say they destroy any initiative for longrange economic planning, cripple the concept of Indian government and break any progress that has been made in developing trust between Ottawa and the bands. In addition, the changes were made without consultation with the bands.

Munro argued with the blessing of bureaucrats in his department that financial controls on the $300 million in Indian band subsidies have been too loose.

Although the minister may be right in saying that the credibility of the Indian affairs department is suffering because of those loose controls, he is attempting to correct the problem is a way that will do nothing to improve Indians' position in Canadian society. Instead of encouraging financial responsibility at the Indian band level, he has only increased the power and responsiblity of his bureaucrats in Ottawa.

The former Tory Indian Affairs Minister, Jake Epp, in a few brief months recognized that a radically different approach was needed. In his own words: "We have failed to help Indians help themselves and help them create and hold jobs." The poverty, alcoholism and 75 to 90 per cent unemployment that exists on most reservations is the proof.

Without intending harm, Ottawa's paternalistic approach to native Indians has undermined the morale of Indian people. The concept of Indian self-government has been evolving since 1965, but it wasn't until Epp took office that it appeared Indians might have a greater opportunity to handle their own own affairs and govern their own lives. He planned to reduce the department to a support agency for the country's 300,000 Indians and expand band powers so that Indians might lessen their dependence on government services.

Obviously reducing the number of 'top-down' services would not be without risk. If Indians are going to gain any measure of self-sufficiency and local government, they might choose unworkable or inappropriate projects. Mistakes are part of learning. But there seems little alternative if Canada ever hopes to eliminate the need for on-going handouts to Indians.

The heavy-handed measures taken by Munro are an indication that the Indian Affairs department is making a regrettable regression to the old ways.

Decoding the newspaper

Technology is now being invented to prevent the theft of satellite signals. Scramblers, as they are known, render transmissions indecipherable unless they are fed through a decoding device.

These instruments are becoming popular with television and pay-TV networks which are losing revenue to a growing number of people installing receiving dishes or special antennas on their lawns.

Until the Toronto Globe and Mail announced it would transmit by satellite news and business pages to earth stations in Eastern and Western Canada, these scrambling machines would have held little interest for newspapers.

If the newspaper is forced to scramble its signals because it is losing broadsheet sales, those who have tapped the Globe's satellite signals had better beware. It will probably be obvious to most that the news of the day has been jumbled, but for anyone who ponders the stock market listings, it might not be so obvious.

In the era of satellite signal hijacking and scramblers, it might not be wise to buy or sell short until you have ink stains on the palm.

BRUCE HUTCHISON

The only question is when

Some wretched Canadians, the Untouchables of our native caste system, earn their keep by studying and explaining the inexplicable economic reports of governments, business leaders, trade unions, university professors, and other learned authorities. Nothing coherent is likely to emerge from this grimy work but now and then it has its points of interest.

Among them, lost in the daily deluge of statistics, is a remarkable assertion by Gerald Bouey. The governor of the central bank says that the national economy is now operating at maximum capacity. The present machine cannot increase its physical output of goods and services in any significant volume.

If so, we must face several unpleasant facts.

Structural problem

First, there is no hope of curing unemployment by a speed-up of existing business, especially when a continental recession may slow business down. The unemployment problem is too deep, too "structural," in the experts' jargon, for such a simple solution.

Second, production can be increased only by the enlargement and improvement of the machinery. The increase would create many extra jobs but it requires huge capital investment of all kinds, public and private.

Third, we cannot make the necessary investment unless we save more of our income and spend less on immediate consumption. Even then we shall need a continuing inflow of foreign capital. In plain English, as distinguished from the doubletalk of politics and the shop talk of economists, we must reduce our so-called standard of living.

No government likes to admit this fact. The former Conservative government was defeated after gingerly admitting it and proposing some marginal inconvenience, far short of sacrifice. But the ordinary citizen had already suspected the truth without the help of the experts. The public mood and gut feeling of North America is one of gloom, anger and dread, perhaps excessive.

Assuming that there will be some decline in living standards (as misleadingly reckoned in statistics) a fourth fact confronts us. If the economic pie cannot be enlarged without massive saving and investment, and if it shrinks, at least temporarily, then our social imperative is to divide it as fairly as possible.

That task is not easy when the powerful groups of business and labor can usually maintain or increase their incomes at the expense of the powerless majority. But a fair distribution, or as fair as any human society can make it in an always unfair world, has become the core of national politics today.

In the chaotic debate throughout America the popular escape mechanism is to blame all our troubles on someone else.

Mr. Bouey, for example, is often denounced as a brutal monetarist (now a dirty word), his bank as a sinister conspiracy against the unfortunate. Mr. Trudeau is accused of the high crime of liberalism, Joseph Clark of conservatism, Edward Broadbent of socialism, though such antique labels have ceased to mean anything important.

The central bank pursues a tight money policy — less tight than that of the Federal Reserve Board in the U.S. — only because it has no alternative weapon, because our governments have pursued, for many years, a loose, inflationary, and disastrous financial policy.

Mr. Trudeau and his Liberal predecessors, beginning with Mackenzie King, abandoned the laissez-faire doctrines of classic liberalism almost half a century ago in favor of a general (and clumsy) state management of the economy. Mr. Clark is not a conservative, nor Mr. Broadbent a socialist by any known definition.

Social democrats

Writing in Canadian Business, a perceptive observer, Anthony Westell, concludes that our leaders "are all social democrats" who argue merely the peripheral minutiae, the housekeeping details of ideology, none of them knowing the answer to the contemporary riddle.

But social democracy, too, is a pretty meaningless label, even if governments can be defeated or elected on some minor variation on the same theme, or some glamorous personality like Mr. Trudeau.

The ordinary citizens need not concern themselves with labels when they know by ordinary common sense — despite all the experts' confusing explanations — the final, obvious fact. It is of course, that in a worldwide situation so distorted, fragile, and grotesque, something will give, sooner or later. The only question is when, how, and with what consequences, good in the long run, or so we must hope, but undoubtedly bad in the short.

Victoria Landmarks

Jane and Susan Moir, born in Ceylon in the 1840s, educated in England, reached British Columbia in 1860 with their mother and the extravagant Thomas Glennie the widowed Mrs. Moir had married.

In 1864, Jane married the young surveyor and engineer, Edgar Dewdney, who became a member of British Columbia's Legislative Council, an M.P. representing the Yale constituency, lieutenant-governor of the Northwest Territories. From 1892-97, he was lieutenant governor of British Columbia, residing at Gary Castle. Although Jane's life was thus largely formal, political, social, she always befriended her mother, Susan, and Susan's children.

Thomas Glennie, leaving his wife and Susan homeless and almost penniless, disappeared in 1864.

In 1868, Susan married John Fall Allison, prospector and pioneer rancher in the isolated Similkameen area, With the assistance of her husband and an Indian neighbor, Susan bore 14 children who all lived to maturity.

By 1902, her husband dead, eight children grown and gone, Susan Allison wrote stories, articles, and her recollections.

These recollections, edited and annotated by Margaret A. Ormsby, are now a book, A Pioneer Gentlewoman of British Columbia, published by the university of British Columbia Press. In simple, lucid, vivid prose, Mrs. Allison described domestic life, small delights, and the disasters of fire and flood.— Contributed by the Victoria Section of the B.C. Historical Association.

Kissinger tops candidates

WASHINGTON — Last week, many of the most prominent newspaper editors in America were listening here to all the major presidential candidates and other political stars. The editors are not going home in an excessively joyous mood.

They seem to have two depressing thoughts: first, that the economy and the foreign policy of the United States are in even worse shape than they imagined; and second, that the American people are doomed to a choice for president between Jimmy Carter and Ronald Reagan, neither of whom said anything here to relieve editorial anxieties.

Yet this was in some ways a remarkable and revealing convention, probably the most searching and civilized discussion of public policy since the beginning of the presidential campaign. Personal and partisan arguments were made on all sides, but usually with the concession that nothing important could really be resolved on purely ideological or partisan grounds.

Bad and worse

It was very odd watching these candidates come up to the podium. Governor Reagan came in just when Washington and the editors were beginning to think that maybe after all he might be the next president, and were therefore guessing he would make a presidential speech. He did nothing of the sort. He gave the editors the same old chicken-circuit Republican fund-raising arguments — hurrying breathlessly through his text. Nobody applauded until the end.

President Carter was not much better. He came into the editors' den and spoke primarily about his immediate negotiations with President Sadat of Egypt and Prime Minister Begin of Israel and his struggles with the American athletes about going to the Olympic Games in Moscow. He got respectful applause.

Reagan dealt with what he called the New Coalition of angry blue-collar workers and ethnics who were longing for a reaffirmation of the moral values of the family and would help him sweep the Democrats from the White House and the Congress. He makes this argument very well. He is calm and occasionally even funny, and handles his formal speeches well until he's questioned about the facts.

Senator Kennedy, who might have come forward with some new vision of the future, stuck to his basic campaign speech, and so did John Anderson, without making any new impression on the editors.

It was former Secretary of State Henry Kissinger who made the only really presidential speech at this convention, and with his sweep of history, made all the others seem almost trivial.

He cut across all the favorite arguments of both major parties. He made a devastating criticism of Carter's foreign policy, without sparing the errors of the Republicans.

"One cannot make history by rewriting it," he said. "A government's job is to find solutions to its problems, not alibis.

"Whoever is victorious in November will find that he needs a united people behind him because he will face a monumental challenge in foreign affairs. I happen to agree with President Carter that the danger to our country is the gravest in the modern period. We are sliding toward a world out of control, with our relative military power declining, with our economic lifeline increasingly vulnerable to blackmail, with hostile radical forces growing in every continent, and with the number of countries willing to stake their future on our friendship dwindling."

Kissinger, in a way, is a symbol of our national problem. Almost everybody who talked to the editors here in Washington complained that we were becoming a divided people, separated from one another.

The people who didn't like Carter or Reagan or Kennedy or Kissinger, rejecting their ideas on personal grounds and not dealing with the major problems of the future, or even publishing their arguments, contribute to this separation.

Kissinger's view was that whatever our problems are elsewhere in the world, we are "doomed to coexistence" with the Soviet Union, but should not be overanxious about that.

Twice the GNP

"We should keep in mind that we alone have twice the gross national product of the Soviet Union and, with the allies, five times the gross national product of the Soviet Union. If we are lagging militarily behind, it is through a lack of will, not of resources; it is within our capacity to rectify it.

"Let us make clear that we are ready for a more constructive future: a world free of the danger of nuclear blackmail; a world in which mankind's desire for peace does not become a weapon in the hand of the most ruthless but is allied to the determination of the just; a world of hope and of progress. With all our travail we remain the most fortunate people in the world: because we have the means, if we have the will, to solve our own problems. History will not do our work for us. But history tells us that we can help ourselves."

Music appreciated

During the past winter we have been privileged to attend several of the concerts presented by a trio of superb musicians — Darry Dean, Kathleen Solose and Larry Skaggs playing a cycle of Beethoven violin and cello sonatas and trios. April 6, was the final program of the series.

We are indeed very fortunate to be able to hear such dedicated artists playing the music of perhaps the greatest of all musicians. — W. Stott, 1216 Hopkins Place.

Full marks

The Hallmark Society is frequently in the position of having to criticise government for lack of action regarding historic preservation; however that is not the reason for this letter. The provincial government gets full marks for having successfully undertaken and completed the monumental task of preserving the Crystal Garden. We have gained a unique tourist attraction with roots in our past. — Michael F. H. Halleran, Secretary.

Sexist remark

I am writing in regard to Human Rights Commissioner Joe Katz's remark that there is no need to have more female members of the commission because its male members can get a woman's point of view from their wives.

If one substitutes black for women, it now reads "there is no need to have more black members of the commission because its male members can get a black's point of view from their slaves". It is no longer a joke; the oppressiveness has become blatantly obvious.

The laughter of the legislature only reflects the sexist egocentricity of its members. It is a sad thing when men who pride themselves on their lack of prejudice can laugh when the oppression and prejudice of their own society is made evident. — Leslie C. Fiddler, 6-1009 Burdett.

Old world charm

I think that the provincial government is making a bad mistake in trying to get rid of the Princess Marguerite. Where she is not an efficient ferry boat in terms of the rest of the boats in the fleet she continues as a part of Victoria's tourist attraction. She is as much a part of the Edwardian flavor of this city as the Empress Hotel and the Parliament Buildings. People in Seattle get on the Marguerite because they want to indulge in that little piece of the past; that old world charm, that the ship and the rest of Victoria offers.

Claims by the government that the Marguerite is not seaworthy continue to be inconsistent and contradictory. Mr. Bennett is quoted as saying that he doesn't know of a vessel that has not been approved by Lloyds of London or the U.S. Coast Guard. By this I assume that he has no faith in the quality of their inspections. Now I have heard that Mr. Bob Baird of M.O.T. Steamship Inspectors has stated the Princess Marguerite is safer than she has ever been. Who do I believe now?

When I owned the Harbor Tours I was regularly inspected by the Steamship Inspectors and I can vouch for the stringency of their inspections. On the basis of my own experiences on having my own vessels inspected I have to place my faith on the word of the inspectors. Simply put, if my boats did not pass inspection they did not sail. I'm sure the Princess Marguerite will be judged the same way. However, the Coast Guard is saying that she can sail. Lloyds of London will underwrite her and MOT finds her safe. Seattle will give a moratorium on her holding tanks. Why then can't she stay on the run? Why does the government give us specious arguments. — Bud Sims, 1764 Chandler Ave.

Sludge link

It is with a considerable amount of interest that I read of the suggested "floating highway to Vancouver." All one has to do, it appears, is for us, the public, to approve the idea in principle, pay out an approximate $1 million for a nine-month feasibility study and then construction could start.

When one thinks of the millions of dollars wasted on trying to pump sewage more than a couple of hundred yards off the coast at Clover Point. After how many feasibility studies?

But perhaps the two could be combined — the bridge, it is said, would involve submerged floating pontoons with piers constructed upwards and the bridge would be several feet above the water and thus not subjected to wave action. Could not large pipes be laid along either side of this bridge so that sewage from both the island and the mainland could be progressively pumped and released along the whole length of the bridge except, of course, where the bridge is submerged to allow ships to pass through.

In time it should be possible to build a solid foundation of sewage for the bridge to settle in. — F. Thompson, 2181 Haultain Street.

Here's how you feel about a bridge-tunnel

'Our island should be an island; that's why we came in the first place'

A bridge or tunnel is inevitable 'so we may as well do it now'

Proposals for a bridge-tunnel link between Vancouver Island went before the provincial cabinet last week.

While Science Minister Pat McGeer didn't get a green light to go ahead with a $500,000 to $1 million feasibility study, he plans to go back to his ministerial colleagues in the near future with more data.

Sam Bawlf, the former cabinet minister who came up with the scheme for the massive project — he estimates the cost would be $2 to $2.5 billion — says the project is viable from both a technological and financial point of view.

Finance Minister Hugh Curtis says a study is needed so everybody knows just what's at stake.

He wants a full debate on the benefits and drawbacks of the project and says a project of this magnitude and dollar size would likely have to be put to voters throughout B.C. in a plebiscite.

Sources indicate that the best way to describe cabinet at this point would be "cautiously neutral" with ministers wanting to mull things over for a while.

But that's not the case with Times readers.

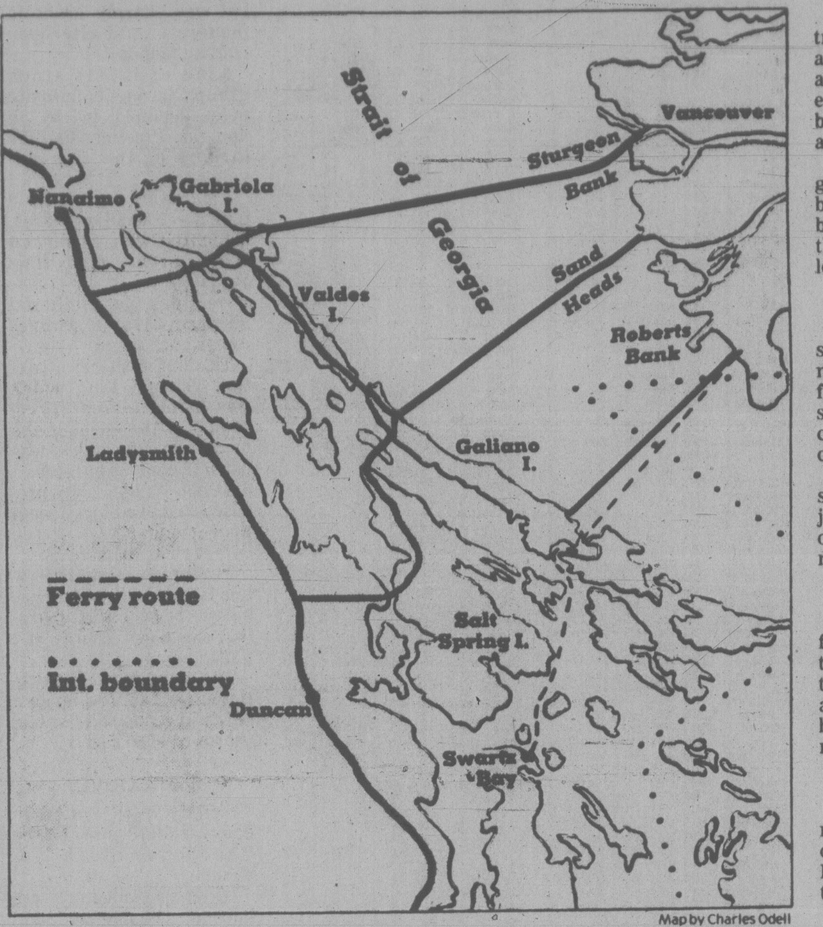
There is no neutrality in the comments on this page. They're either dead against or all for the plan.

Here's what you had to say:



Map by Charles Odell

PROPOSED ROUTES of Island mainland link include northern hookup from Nanaimo to Vancouver over Gabriola Island (top); a central connection starting north of Duncan, across Salt Spring and Galiano to Steveston (centre), or a southern link from Galiano to Roberts Bank (bottom) that would include a variety of possible connections west and south.

"Our Island should be an island — that's why we came here in the first place."

Katherine B. Sultill

"Positively, emphatically, no!! I moved to the Island to get away from the grind of the big city. Who needs it? Hopefully this is just another ploy by this totally inept, bumbling, stumbling bunch of used car dealers we call our provincial government, to take the heat off their dubious leader."

Len Collicott

"We have enough traffic and tourists with the present transportation accommodation."

Meredith Maxwell

"The government claims it is not possible to install more ferries in the system. I doubt that is true.

"If we are talking in terms of billions there is no reason why a whole new port facility couldn't be installed at another location on the Island.

"Visitors could be encouraged to travel as foot passengrs if the government ran a good Island bus service to all the popular tourist spots."

Jerrine Lee

"A direct ferry from Hatch Point (Cowichan Bay) to the mainland for all traffic from Mill Bay, Cobble Hill, Shawnigan, Cowichan Bay, Maple Bay, Duncan, Chemainus, Cowichan Lake area would save gas and the long drive and the traffic congestion at either Nanaimo or Victoria."

H.J. Bowman

"If I wanted to live in a Vancouver suburb, I would move to Surrey."

Noel Newman

"For years, England and France have discussed having a tunnel built between Dover and Calais or thereabouts. It has never got off the drawing boards. However, they do not have any lack of tourists, even though they cannot drive their cars or vehicles to England.

"Instead they have built adequate airports, the citizens have been building, and adapting those already built, for tourist accommodation, the rental car business has expanded enormously as well as other means of transportation, e.g. special rates on trains."

Alan R. Fraser

"There are enough smogmakers on our Island already and the government's efforts should be directed to rapid transit and a passenger-only hovercraft system, hydrofoils being impractical in our debris-ridden waters."

Bill Maynard.

"A ploy to take public attention away from Socred internal problems and the Marguerite fiasco. A clear political trick."

W.D. Roberts

"Think of the thousands of British Columbians who travel each year to Hawaii. They don't take their cars with them. In Hawaii there are buses, taxis, auto rentals to get the tourist or business man to the tourist or business attractions with ease.

"Why not here?

"Make the ferries 'people ferries.' No cars. Turn the car decks into mini-theatres, restaurants or pubs, or even cabins. Run a ferry service from downtown Victoria to downtown Vancouver to downtown Seattle like a mini-cruise ship service with overnight stays in each city.

"It's the automobile that's plugging the ferry system, not people.

Dick Lawdson

"So Japan is connecting two islands by a tunnel. Fine, let them have it but leave us as we are."

Mrs. J.P. Caton

"Personally, I could never use the tunnel because of claustrophobia.

"The special charm of this part of B.C. is the water and the mountains — a beautiful, relaxing trip by ferry."

K.E. Pope

"If people are seeking a mainland lifestyle why not go and live on the mainland?"

Doug Redgrave

"It would not be safe due to severe winter storms and tides. However, by tying Vancouver Island to Galiano or Mayne Islands by bridge is feasible and much needed. Then using fast and frequent no-frill ferries from either of these Gulf Islands to the mainland would be far safer and less costly."

Cliff Faulkner

"Can you possibly imagine the change it would make to the lifestyle of Victoria? It's a lifestyle that the people want as it is, or they wouldn't be here. Traffic congestion would be horrendous, and downtown would be no more than a car park — a nightmare like Los Angeles. No thank you, in any shape or form."

N.E. Morgan

"It would bring Vancouver Island within easy commuting distance of Vancouver. I don't believe the lower end of the Island can absorb very many people without totally spoiling our beautiful Island."

D.L. Flynn, Helen Flynn

"Developers are the only people who could see any merit in this idea. Makes as much sense as the opposite idea — tow the Island farther out!"

Wero Hansen

"If they do put a tunnel in I only hope they will tell the people when the last ferry sails from Victoria and I will be on it.

"I spent almost 12 years working in a mine under a lake and the ground pressure was so great that there was nothing in the world to hold it from squeezing in. The company brought in experts from all over the world to try and find a way to hold the tunnels open but that was to no avail."

A.B. Kusiack

"Who is this scheme supposed to benefit, anyway? What island people really need in my view is improved food service on the ferries and better recreational opportunities on the Gulf Islands which are already being rapidly bought up and lost to public access."

Thomas K. Ovanin

"The interest on $2 billion would give us the finest hydroplane or hovercraft service in the world."

M.P. Paine

"We have assurances from the "engineering experts" — but remember the Hood Canal floating bridge in Washington state.

"The engineers said it couldn't sink, but it did! Putting billions of dollars of public spending into such a high risk project is lunacy."

Richard Ritter

"I like Victoria and Vancouver Island the way they are. Why turn the Saanich peninsula into a vast Vancouver bedroom?

"Also why ease the way for an influx of Vancouver's fairly numerous Skid Road population?

"I suggest that the money be spent on building a natural gas pipeline from the mainland to lower home heating costs here."

Harry Martin

"The $2 billion could best be spent on people's real, pressing needs — old people with little money, teenagers who need help, the rest of us who need dental care coverage and other sorts of services.

"The money should be used to help people, not to build an unnecessary and ill-fated monument to a political party."

Mary Anne Erickson

"I think the government has rocks in its collective head.

"They should concentrate on making the Island a place fit to live in. A bridge would create more problems than it solves. If they have so much money to spend on bridges and B.C. Place they can use some of it to update the medieval sewage disposal, for instance.

"A good passenger ferry downtown to downtown would make more sense, using faster, smaller boats."

Sarah Talbot

"We should get the priorities in order.

"Perhaps before we start bringing vast numbers of people onto the islands we could first find some sensible solution to the present sewage problems."

Mrs. V. Rumball

"I think instead of spending billions on this idea they should start spending it on the sewage problem.

"Stop talking about it — and I mean sewage disposal plants, not dumping it.

"British Columbia is certainly the place to live, but it is also the filthiest."

Edna Auger

"If the engineers don't do a better job than those fellows who built the Clover Point sewage outfall, we're sunk!"

Mrs. J. Moore

"Thousands of cars and motor buses from Vancouver would be tearing over here night and day, making life here on the Island a living hell. Please think this over."

John Whitlock

"An island is an island is an island," to slightly misquote Gertrude Stein and God willing, will everlastingly remain that way.

"I can only say no, no, a thousand times no!

"Let the fast buck makers and the so-called "shakers and movers" depart permanently to the already destroyed Lower Mainland. Their ilk is not needed here."

Mrs. A.C. Massie

"The main reason for people living on the island is to get out of the mainstream of traffic and city living — to experience the beauties of nature, song of the birds, scents of the flowers and the ocean views around.

"This is our reason for being here. The people who visit here from the mainland presumably want the same thing, otherwise they would spend their holidays in the suburbs of Vancouver, breathing in all the fumes of busy traffic arteries and congested streets.

"These objectives would be completely defeated if a fixed link was provided to the mainland, and our peace and quiet would be shattered.

"New Zealand has a small ferry linking the north and south island which is operated entirely on reservations. Surely Canadians with their computers should be able to do the same."

S.L. and W.A. Donaldson

"We are getting more traffic tie-ups all the time and it is going to get worse as the years go on. We will eventually have to go to a bridge or tunnel so we may as well do it now.

"In addition, a natural gas pipeline could be brought along side of the bridge or tunnel to supply the island with gas which is long overdue."

Gilbert Dorey

"Ask the police on both sides of the water how many deaths and injury from pandemonium possessed drivers rushing to catch ferries have occurred in the last 15 years.

"The psychological and social impact of this project will be resolved in my opinion, by a green light mandate to it."

N. Liberto

"I have lived in an era from radio with earphones to men on the moon and I think progress must go on and will go on. I hope to be here when the link to the mainland is completed."

D. Seddou

"It is sad to see by your returns the flat Earth society seems to be still alive. Even high tolls are better than long waits."

F.G. Rowley.

"In the last couple of days there has been much made of the unique island lifestyle.

"If a sufficient public interest wants to maintain their perceived isolation, this can readily be accomplished by maintaining the present level of ferry service and giving priority on ferry loading to island residents — both to and from the island.

"This should have the effect of limiting tourism and other business essential for progress in short order."

M. Deyette

"As part of the Trans-Canada highway, federal government should help finance the project."

G.C. Hannah

"The present terrible situation is a disgrace to all local people, also to relatives and friends around the world.

W. McEwen

"All commuters should remember the times when those greedy, militant unions brought travel to and from our island to a halt. Their attitude of 'to hell with the travelling public' should not be forgotten.

"Regardless of cost we would all be better off without these inconsiderate and greedy creatures.

"Make sure the tunnel or bridge is under management teams and unions are kept out completely."

J.E. Lelion

"It takes five hours to fly to Hawaii and it takes anywhere from two to eight hours to get to Vancouver from Victoria.

"The system is outdated, frustrating, and due to inflation will become more than any government can keep up."

J.R. Check

"Free us from the fetters of fickle ferries
And link us land-to-land
Rid us of the sailing waits
And let us cross whene'er

Ernest Foychuk

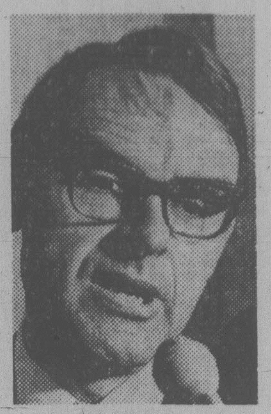
"If some other means of transport can be provided for $2 billion, lets go for broke and do it now.

"Ten years from now it will be imperative and will no doubt cost $5 billion by that time."

A. Callander

"This way Victorians can see Vancouver shows without having to stay the night in Vancouver."

Gloria Burgoyne



McGEER . . . more data

"Recently friends of ours saw somebody off at the airport in Vancouver. The travellers landed in England before our friends could get back to Victoria!

"Victoria should be considered as the westerly end of the highway across Canada. Instead we pay heavily for the privilege of living here."

J. de Leon

"Such a link will undoubtedly change the quality of life on Vancouver Island — probably it will lower the quality although there are many advantages of a social, economic and a convenience nature.

"If we accept a link (in the long run we have no choice but to accept it) then let's ensure that Vancouver Island doesn't become another Coney Island."

Chester Prevey

"We should have giant causeways built with rock, then bridged for short spans to allow ships and tidal waters to move through freely.

"This should be all free labor to taxpayers carried out by the prisoners in our institutions.

"They could be paid a wage. They would be doing something constructive and would be happy and too tired to have riots and smash things at our expense."

F.E. Crosbie

"There has been a lot of talk for years about being stuck on the island and wishing the government would do something about it.

Eventually it's going to be done and speaking to many people I know, they feel the same as I do.

"Sincerely hoping you get on with it."

Eleanor Bikadi

"Lets hope Premier Bill will have the courage to go ahead and not mind some of the small minority of defeatists who are against any good idea this government comes up with."

Mack and Jeanne Harris

"An increasing island population will demand an increased commercial transportation system, as well as facilities to transport the products of developing industries from the island to the mainland.

"A further bonus will be a marked augmentation to the tourist trade. Let's get on with the planning."

C.J. Dillon

"Some islanders are selfish and want the island to themselves."

Hazel P. Dougan

"My preference is for solid bridge linkage from island to island and either floating bridge or short haul ferry service from Active Pass area to Tsawwassen."

M. Turner

"With the certain future emphasis on mass transit systems, it would be most advisable to include a train system in with any road that might be considered."

J.K. McKinnon

"The best innovation since Moses parted the Red Sea."

Whonnock head joins West Fraser

VANCOUVER (CP) — Chester Johnson is moving from the presidency of Whonnock Industries Ltd. to the same position with West Fraser Timber Co. Ltd.

Johnson announced his resignation from Whonnock at a shareholders meeting on March 21. He said in an interview Friday that he likely will start at West Fraser in June.

He replaces Doug Johnston, who resigned on Feb. 29.

Despite interest real estate booms

TORONTO (CP) — The Globe and Mail says that despite high mortgage rates, real estate in most major Canadian cities is selling at record levels.

A national real estate survey by the newspaper says that a vast majority of home buyers are scooping up properties where existing mortgages have two or three years to run at rates of 10.5 and 11.5 per cent. Few houses have been bought at current rates of 16 to 17.5 per cent, the survey says.

The newspaper also says many buyers are entering deals with vendors who accept lower-than-market mortgage rates.

Eric Charman, president of the 52,000-member Canadian Real Estate Association, said in an interview that the market is buoyant: "We're seeing record prices for the houses and record volumes in sales. Of course, there are soft spots, but that happens in every market."

The survey says the best sales appear to be on the East Coast and in Alberta, where the presence of oil has fueled a real estate boom, and in Vancouver and Victoria, where an upswing in the economy and an influx of migrating families has the market thriving.

The Globe and Mail says Quebec and Ontario show increased sales, while markets in Manitoba and Saskatchewan are soft but expected to improve.

High interest rate crisis killing small business

TORONTO (CP) — Record high interest rates are creating a bleak future for small businesses, says Geoffrey Hale, a director of the Canadian Organization of Small Business.

Hale said in an interview that business bankruptcies are about 16 per cent higher than last year.

"If you extrapolate those figures for the whole year, you could see about 10 per cent of all businesses in Canada going under this year," he said.

"In Ontario alone, we expect to see some 10,000 firms collapse under the weight of double-digit interest rates."

Small business is defined as companies with annual sales of less than $2 million. The owner of one such business, Cedar Heights Home Hardware in Toronto, said he worries that his company cannot stay afloat because of dizzying interest rates on bank loans.

James Theodoro, who founded the store in 1975, said, "I'm being squeezed both ways — by the banks who help finance my inventory and by my suppliers who are adding interest charges to bills that aren't paid by the end of the month."

Theodoro said he usually takes out bank loans of about $110,000 a year and last year interest payments cost him $9,000. This year, with the prime rate charged by banks at 17.5 per cent, he expects to pay about $16,500 in interest.

Add to that the extra interest charges his suppliers are demanding on bills unpaid in 30 days and his total extra interest charges in 1980 will be about $25,000.

Theodoro said his sales target for this year was $1 million, up from $650,000 last year, but "that's now gone by the wayside."

Andy Silvester, head of ESE Sports Ltd. of Toronto, which supplies sports goods to retailers, said, "We are being forced to press our customers for early payment because we, like them, are up against a cash squeeze."

"We need money quickly because we have to pay our U.S. and European suppliers way ahead of time. If we don't get paid by our suppliers promptly we have to go to the bank — and that's very expensive."

Silvester said he thinks many small companies will go bankrupt this year and many of his customers are operating "just to pay the interest on their loans."

The Canadian Association of Small Business is lobbying the federal government for a 200-per-cent tax break on interest payments by small businesses, Hale said.

"That means if a company is paying $10,000 a year in interest, double that — or $20,000 — should be an allowable expense against profits."

But John Bulloch, president of the Canadian Federation of Independent Business, said he does not expect small business can expect significant tax breaks in the coming federal budget.

today's markets

The Toronto stock market was sharply lower in moderate mid-afternoon trading Monday.

Nine of the 14 stock groups in the composite index declined, led by oil and gas. Pipelines had the largest of the five advances.

Volume of trading by 2 p.m. was 2.3 million shares, compared with 4.4 million shares at the same time Friday.

Declines outnumbered advances 235 to 151 with 186 issues unchanged.

Trading in shares of Action Traders Inc., which was halted March 31, resumed at the opening and by 2 p.m. the stock was down 12 cents to 21 cents.

Action Traders has proposed that creditors accept preferred shares of the company instead of cash.

Trading in shares of Skyline Hotels Ltd., which was halted briefly this morning, was down ⅛ to $5 at 2 p.m.

The company said York-Hannover Ltd. has made a bid to purchase all Skyline shares at $5.50 a share.

Paragon Resources Warrants dropped .02 to .38 and Seahawk Oil and Gas gained .10 to $1.50.

New York

Stock prices fell on the New York stock market Monday as recession fears mounted and a U.S. government official predicted the trade deficit will increase this year.

Treasury Secretary G. William Miller said it will be "difficult" for the United States to match 1979's small trade deficit because the bill for imported oil will total $85 billion to $90 billion, up from about $60 billion last year.

A mild rally last week had been mounted on hopes of a peak in interest rates had been reached, but analysts said investor attention appeared to have turned to the prospect that a recession may be here, and with it a decline in corporate profits. U.S. government figures to be released later in the week are expected to provide a better indication of the economy's fate.

Utility stocks, strong last week on hopes of a peak in interest rates, were generally down. Puget Sound Power and Light fell ½ to $13⅞ and Consumers Power ⅜ to $17⅝. But American Telephone and Telegraph was unchanged at $50⅛.

London

The London stock market was higher near the close of steady trading Monday.

The Financial Times index rose 3.2 to 438.8.

Industrials, golds, banks and oils firmed.

Canadian stocks showed little change.

Interest rate outlook brighter

CP Business Editor

Canadian interest rates, which have risen to record levels in recent weeks, probably are close to their peaks and will have backed off by four percentage points by yearend, says economist Robert MacIntosh.

MacIntosh, who in June becomes the first full-time president of the Canadian Bankers' Association, feels that the United States already is looking back at the peak for interest charges.

If U.S. rates do drop — a couple of small U.S. banks reduced their prime rates to 19.5 per cent last week from 20 per cent — Canadian rates will follow.

MacIntosh said in an interview that there are a couple of reasons for Canadians to be cautiously optimistic about the outlook for their mortgage renewal or next new-car loan.

First, the Canadian dollar appears to have stabilized around the 84.8-cent U.S. mark and, secondly, the Bank of Canada rate last week was unchanged at 16.2 per cent after rising rapidly since it was freed to float in early March.

These may indicate that high interest charges are beginning to bite, he says.

He agrees with the Bank of Canada that the only way to get interest rates lower is to crack inflation. The key to that is to change people's belief that things are going to cost more next year — the so-called inflation psychology.

Cranking interest rates up so high they hurt is the most direct way of accomplishing that, he says.

"I don't believe in gradualism in monetary policy. Adding a quarter or half a per cent interest over six months won't win a government credibility. It's not enough sulfa to kill the infection.

"But who wants to look at 20-per-cent interest?"

MacIntosh says he doesn't know of a single economist who predicted the last five-point gain in Canadian interest rates before they rose to the present level of 17.5 per cent for prime loans, the ones chartered banks give to top-rated commercial customers.

No one expected the price of foreign crude oil to move to $36 a barrel from $20 as quickly as it did, and then no one thought the U.S. would be as tough as it has been in jumping its rates to fight inflation.

"In the U.S., the government's bite suddenly got worse than its bark, so they have driven rates far higher than anyone expected."

MacIntosh, who was executive vice-president of the Bank of Nova Scotia before joining the bankers' association, looks the archtype banker-economist in a conservative business suit, but he can be refreshing.

He will, for example, use a four-letter Anglo-Saxonism briskly and authoritatively to underline a viewpoint. He interrupted a critique on the size of Canada's deficit to remind himself to get a pair of binoculars to watch a flock of juncos cavorting in a tree outside his office.

And, while he supports the Bank of Canada on interest rates, he has other views about the government's oil-price policy.

"Dumb," he says. "Really dumb."

Canadians are actually paying world oil prices since they're subsidizing cheap western crude through taxes but they will still have to absorb the shock of world prices at the gas pump when increases inevitably come.

"I figured recently that Canada is subsidizing foreign airlines to the tune of five or 10 million dollars since they fill their tanks here with fuel priced low through Canadian taxpayers.

"What other country would do that? The height of foolishness."

Rendina Hamilton

The B.C. Telephone Company has announced the election of Rendina Hamilton to the Board of Directors.

Mrs. Hamilton has a B.A. from the University of Toronto, a law degree from the University of British Columbia and has practised law in Vancouver and Penticton.

She served on the Penticton School Board for eight years acting as Chairman from 1973 to 1979. She has been President of the B.C. Mrs. Hamilton presently resides in Kelowna with her husband and three daughters.

Oil industry disappointed by depletion allowance end

CALGARY (CP) — There was disappointment but little surprise in the oil industry in the wake of a federal government announcement to end the super-depletion allowance for oil and gas frontier exploration.

Finance Minister Allan MacEachen and Energy Minister Marc Lalonde said Tuesday the government would allow the tax break, officially known as the frontier exploration allowance, to lapse but would replace it with a new incentive plan.

John Porter, executive director of the Independent Petroleum Association of Canada, said he was not surprised by the announcement.

"The Conservatives said in their budget they were going to let it expire and the Liberals said they were going to let it expire," said Porter Tuesday. "We're glad to hear they're going to be coming up with something else to replace it, but I can't tell you how glad until we know what the replacement is."

R. H. Carlyle, vice-president for exploration of Gulf Canada Ltd., said he was disappointed at the decision.

"We had been hearing that the were going to extend it and we hoped that they would," he said. "We still think it's important for self-sufficiency in oil."

Carlyle said Dome Petroleum Ltd. discoveries in the Beaufort Sea would not have been possible without the super-depletion allowance. Exploration of new frontiers such as the Labrador Shelf would be prohibitively expensive without special tax breaks from Ottawa, he said.

Carlyle said he hopes the new incentive plan will be similar to the super-depletion allowance.

But he said the three-year-old program was not in effect long enough to produce results. He said Gulf's frontier exploration had benefitted from the allowance only in the fiscal quarter just ended.

Carlyle said Dome's Beaufort write-offs of up to 200 per cent had made the allowance politically unpopular but the incentives of the allowance could be retained without excesses.

"I hope they'll plug up the holes allowing abuses of the system," he said.

Foreign car sales up

OTTAWA (CP) — New motor vehicle sales in February rose 4.8 per cent to 103,816 units from a year earlier, on the strength of a spectacular gain in sales of foreign-made vehicles, Statistics Canada said Wednesday.

Foreign-made car sales rose 90.6 per cent while truck and van sales were up 168.5 per cent in February from a year earlier.

However, North American-built car sales dropped 1.5 per cent and truck and van sales fell 9.1 per cent in the month, although the sales volume accounts for more than 80 per cent of total sales.

In value terms, total sales increased 11.2 per cent to $885.9 million although the value of overseas sales jumped 100 per cent for cars and 186.8 per cent for trucks and vans.

Westmount realtors fly the coop

MONTREAL (CP) — About two-thirds of the real estate agents at the Westmount branch of A. E. LePage (Quebec) Inc. have resigned to join rival Montreal Trust Co.

The 20 agents were apparently unhappy about a company plan to deduct two per cent of gross commissions earned to pay for a national television advertising campaign.

The Westmount branch of A. E. LePage (Quebec), which is a subsidiary of Canada's largest real estate broker — A. E. LePage Ltd. of Toronto — is the most profitable in the parent company's nationwide chain.

Montreal Trust, which has been expanding aggressively in Montreal, says it plans to open a new real estate brokerage branch in Westmount soon.

company reports

Trimac

Trimac Ltd. of Vancouver has reported 1979 net earnings of $15.1 million, or $2 per share, up 44 percent from 1978 earnings of $10.5 million, or $1.48 per share.

In its annual report, Trimac also announced 1979 operating revenues of $193.5 million, up 24 per cent, and a quarterly dividend of 7½ cents per share, up from five cents a year ago.

Trimac president J.R. McCaig attributed much of the earnings increase to the expanded drilling fleet of the company, which operates interests in transportation and energy resource industries.

General Electric

General Electric Co. reports sharply higher profits for the first quarter of 1980, paced by its industrial and natural resource operations.

GE announced first-quarter earnings of $341 million dollars or $1.50 a share, up 13 per cent over the level for the same quarter last year of $303 million, or $1.33 a share.

Sales during the period rose 16 per cent to $5.88 billion from $5.08 billion a year ago.

Industrial products and components showed substantially higher profits with a strong performance posted by transportation systems. Earnings in natural resources climbed 25 per cent to $64 million from $52 million last year.

Controlled Foods

Controlled Foods International Ltd. of Burnaby, which controls the A and W and Fuller's restaurant chains, reports a significant drop in earnings during 1979.

The company said in a news release net income for 1979 was $523,556 or 27 cents a share, compared with $1.7 million or 93 cents a share in 1978.

Controlled Foods president Leroy E. Fuller blamed the reduction in profits on increased head office overhead expenses and higher costs in the Fuller's restaurant division, which is trying to upgrade its market position.

The other divisions of the company, Fuller said, performed according to plan.

Pacific Western

Pacific Western Airlines had net earnings of $12.8 million in 1979 compared to $8.4 million a year ago, the company said in its annual report.

The airline, which is owned by the Alberta government, had operating revenues of $202.8 million, up 17.2 per cent from 1978, and operating expenses of $189.1 million, up 17.5 per cent.

Metropolitan

Metropolitan Life has reported a whopping increase of 74.9 per cent in the sale of new group life insurance policies during the fiscal year ending Dec. 31, 1979, for a total of $1.25 billion.

Sales of new individual life insurance increased slightly to $1.68 billion from $1.66 billion in 1978.

In a statement, company president Charles Armstrong said the total Metropolitan life insurance held by Canadians rose to $20.3 billion, an increase of 20.8 per cent from 1978, while group life insurance in force jumped 39 per cent to $9.3 billion from $6.7 billion.

Disbursements reached $252 million in 1979, from $232 million a year earlier, of which $181 million was in the form of dividends and payments to living policyholders, Armstrong said.

Prenor in control of Trust General

MONTREAL (CP) — The Prenor Group Ltd. has acquired enough shares of Trust General du Canada to give it 68-per-cent control of the trust company, Lorne Webster, who controls the group, has announced.

The acquisition of Trust General's assets of $689 million roughly doubles the size of Prenor, whose consolidated assets had been about $600 million.

In March, Prenor offered to buy the equivalent of 720,000 common shares of Trust General through its insurance company, Les Prevoyants du Canada. It had already owned 50 per of Trust General stock.

Although Trust General's charter prevents any one shareholder from voting more than 10 per cent of its shares, Webster said Prenor expects to exercise effective control through informal alliances with management.

Prenor offered to pay $21 a common share and $18.27 a preferred share for a total of $15.1 million.

Eventually, it appeared that nearly all the shares not already held by Prenor had been tendered, Webster said. This would mean that about half the shares tendered would be bought and the rest returned to their owners.

Consultants say B.C. tourism lacks planning

"However, the highly competitive character of tourism demands a stronger approach to planning and development if the province is not to be surpassed by other Canadian and American areas who are aggressively organizing their resources to provide the kind of tourism experiences anticipated by present and future markets."

The study was done by Marshall Macklin Monaghan Ltd., Steven and Kellogg and L.J. D'Amour & Associates of Vancouver under a federal-provincial agreement.

They were commissioned in April last year to come up with a long-term tourism development strategy covering the next 20 years and to draw up individual tourism plans for the province's nine tourism regions.

Their report, British Columbia Travel Industry Study, says much of B.C.'s existing "tourism plant" developed in response to the automobile-based market that typified the 1950s and 1960s and is concentrated along major roads such as the Trans-Canada Highway and Highway 97 through the Okanagan.

"This is an extremely sensitive market segment in these times of energy shortages, higher costs and smaller vehicles."

Much of the accommodation in interior regions is in the form of campgrounds which are also very sensitive to energy costs, and to emerging trends towards more structured, shorter, active vacations.

"Because travel patterns and vacation activity preferences are changing, it may be unwise to concentrate on the upgrading of existing facilities. They may prove to be poorly situated and poorly equipped to attract the markets of the future."

Integrated, all-season resorts are the type of facility needed for the future, the report says. There are now 15 of them in all of B.C., nine in the southwest corner of the province.

The report repeats the often-stated claim that tourism is the third most important industry in B.C. but it provides some statistics on how important it is in relation to the other top two, mining and forestry.

Tourism provides 5.4 per cent of the gross provincial product — the sum of the value of all goods and services — compared to seven per cent for mining and 20 per cent for forestry.

About 10,000 tourism and travel-related businesses exist in B.C., employing approximately 64,000 people. The industry provided almost $200 million in gross revenue to various levels of government in 1978.

However, the report says that the growth rate tourism enjoyed in the 1970s — 5.6 per cent a year over-all since 1972 — will be hard to maintain in this decade, and the consultants suggest a more modest figure of four to five per cent.

They estimate 13.7 million person-trips by 1983, an increase of four per cent a year, and overnights stays totalling 60 million person-nights that year, up 4.5 per cent annually. Total expenditure should rise to $1.8 million, also a 4.5 per cent a year increase.

To keep up with even this lower rate of growth, the industry is going to need up to 3,200 new employees and managers a year and up to 2,900 hotel-motel units and 2,900 other units of accommodation per year.

But there is currently a serious problem — a lack of skilled employees and operators in the tourist business and no adequate training.

The report warns that unless a program is implemented and more people are attracted to the often low-paying, seasonal tourist trade, the present shortage will only get worse.

The report also praises many noteworthy commercial tourism facilities and activities — Caribo dude ranches, ocean resorts on Georgia Strait, northern hunting and fishing camps, hot springs resorts, helicopter skiing in the Columbia Valley, rafting on the Fraser and numerous regional ski resorts.

The consultants recommend a strategy for future tourism development on what they call a "nodal corridor concept" which will establish specific tourism corridors (such as the Island Highway, the Yellowhead, Trans-Canada and Highway Three from Williams Lake to Bella Coola) and destination centres like Victoria, Vancouver, Port Hardy, the Lillooet area and the Okanagan Valley.

This stratgey will bring about a gradual shift in the nature of B.C. tourism, aiming at broad markets with a substantial portion in package tours.

"In essence, the first five-year period of the 20-year planning horizon will be a transitional period to re-orient the direction of tourism development in B.C.

"The medium term will be a period of substantial capital investment in the proposed new plant and the promotion of the required markets in order to establish B.C. as a destination vacation area.

"The present rather fragmented rubber tire industry will become concentrated and well-organized, providing a quality product to the active vacationer. The transformation however, will require a major commitment from senior levels of government and the private sector."

Woman badly hurt in crash

A woman driving north in the 3700-block Blenkinsop Sunday afternoon was seriously injured when her compact car crossed the centre line and crashed into a telephone pole.

Wendy Lou Shoolingin, 24, was semi-conscious when she was taken to Royal Jubilee Hospital with chest injuries.

She was listed her in fairly good condition this morning.

At about 2:30 a.m. today, a car driven on Beach Drive by Joseph Vaillancourt, a crew member aboard HMCS Provider, slammed into an oak tree at 396 King George Terrace.

Vaillancourt and his passenger, Martin MacMillan were both injured and Vaillancourt's 1968 car was a writeoff.

Harbor tours go a long way back

Q. I'd like to know when the Inner Harbor excursion boats started running to the Gorge and back. Have they been discontinued? L.S.H.

A. They started a long way back and they're still running.

We're told there were boats transporting passengers in the harbor even before streetcars came to Victoria in 1890. One of the most famous of these was Captain Troop's sternwheeler which churned the waters around 1908. These boats primarily provided transportation, not sightseeing.

In 1949 Bud Sims began the forerunner of a summer business that still operates.

With only one small boat, he began taking passengers on tours which included the Gorge waterway and Esquimalt naval base.

In those days the charge for the one-hour trip was $1. Sims sold the business in 1972. The service is now operated by Marcel Fisher and the tour still originates from the wharf in front of The Empress.

They begin in early May and continue until October. The trip costs $2 for children and $5 for adults.

It all began with a squeal

By PAUL MINVIELLE

Ask Helen Simpson-Baikie about the early days of the Bastion Theatre and she'll tell you about the time she auditioned a pig.

Now executive-director of Bastion Theatre, Simpson-Baikie recalled the trip to a Saanich farm to check out a particular porker's acting ability.

She was stage director then and the play, Three Parts Benedict, called for the pig — it didn't have any lines — to simply run across the stage.

Never one to shirk her duty, Simpson-Baikie decided she should establish a closer relationship with the young animal actor so she climbed into the pen — and quickly out again as the porker made a run at her.

When they finally got the pig to the theatre for a rehearsal, it began rushing madly about the stage and finally fell — with piercing, porcine screams — into the orchestra pit.

The compassionate stage director, fearing the pig was hurt, began crying.

"That pig was a damned nuisance," Simpson-Baikie recalled but smiled as she said it.

Her recollections of Bastion's growing pains came as the theatre group celebrates its 10th season as a professional troupe, although it can trace its history back to amateur days in 1963.

To mark the occasion, April has been dedicated Bastion Theatre Month in Victoria by Mayor Bill Tindall.

But Bastion is anything but local.

Its travelling troupe, which gave 19 shows in Victoria schools in its first season, is just finishing the last of 208 performances all around the province in the 1979-80 season.

Mime and comedy have been brought to such places as the Gulf and Coast islands, Anahim Lake and Alexis Creek, Port Hardy, Tofino, Ucluelet and Bamfield.

Simpson-Baikie was part of those first plays for children.

"What they're doing now is wonderfully satisfying to me," she said.

When you delve into the beginnings of Bastion Theatre, you never know where you're going to end up.

Simpson-Baikie's father was a British Army officer escaping Russia and the Bolshevik Revolution.

In Baluchistan on India's Northwest Frontier he met another refugee, a White Russian woman. They married and later, in Quetta, Helen was born.

She grew up in exciting times, moving about the Middle and Near East as Japan rolled over southeast Asia. She was in Iraq when she met and married William Simpson-Baikie.

He had been interned in Japan and released on a diplomatic exchange.

His fluent Japanese won him a spot on British radio beaming propaganda at Japan.

Helen was also in radio and as Japan crumbled, the couple moved east to India and Malaya, helping to restore communications in war-torn areas. Their daughter was born in New Delhi, their son in an Army hospital in Singapore.

So what does all this have to do with Bastion?

In its way, Helen Simpson-Baikie's intriguing family history has become a part of Bastion, one tiny tile in the mosaic of backgrounds on which the success of the theatre company was built.

Bastion's theatre school used to handle 150 would-be thespians a year.

There are now 120 or so students for the sessions in each of the four seasons.

Simpson-Baikie's start with Bastion was definitely dramatic.

She had signed up for theatre lessons but when Ramona McBean was called out of town, Simpson-Baike was tagged for the roles of the Red Queen and Dormouse.

"I was tossed into the middle of everything," she said. "Not the best way to learn but we all did learn."

Now executive-director of Bastion Theatre, Helen Simpson-Baikie has some fond memories of the troupe's beginnings in the former Hope Lutheran Church located at Princess and Chambers.

In those days, everybody had a hand in everything, from sewing costumes, designing posters and fireproofing burlap bags used in making stage sets.

The pig wasn't the only difficult moment, but Bastion players never lost their aplomb.

There was the time, for instance, that Margaret Martin, wearing a hat with a lot of feathers, was bobbing her head to and fro.

On one bob, she leaned too close to a candle on a table and the feathers caught fire.

Simpson-Baikie leaned forward and calmly snuffed the flaming feathers with her fingers. No one missed a beat or a line.

And that's the stuff of Bastion tradition.

Strathcona fee hike under fire

Three Mt. Douglas Secondary School teachers, their principal and a former school trustee have rallied against Education Minister Brian Smith's suggestion for higher fees for outdoor education at Strathcona Lodge.

Outdoor and environmental education teacher Bill Conconi is asking Greater Victoria school board to help persuade the ministry to restore what he called proper financing to avoid forcing the lodge on Buttle Lake to raise student fees.

Smith's proposal would raise student costs by 50 per cent, Conconi said.

The ministry's support fell to $50,000 this year from $140,000 in 1974, Conconi said in a letter signed by teachers Monty Fulton and Earl Hockin and principal Wallace Russell.

The board also has a copy of a letter from ex-trustee Daphne Temple to Smith expressing amazement at the thought of a fee increase that might discourage use of the lodge's physically and mentally stimulating program.

"Instead, the government should be encouraging all schools to participate in what Strathcona Park has to offer — an experience of a lifetime," Temple said.

Strathcona Lodge is a non-profit institution offering wilderness and survivial training for students and members of the public. It also provides teacher upgrading.

Between February and May this year the lodge has scheduled courses for 50 public and private schools, including five in Greater Victoria.

Conconi said the last time Mt. Douglas students took a four-day course the cost per student was $65, not counting extras.

He said the remote location provides a rural experience with students living and learning together 24 hours a day "away from cars, radios, TV and junk food."

Assistant deputy minister R.J. Carter told Temple Strathcona had been absorbing one-quarter of the ministry's small annual grant fund for outside organizations for the past four years. At the same time, the lodge has been operating at a deficit, he said.

James Bay group gets land

The James Bay Multi-level Care Society has been given land valued at $350,000 between Toronto and Simcoe streets for construction of a 70-bed intermediate-care facility.

The land was owned by the province.

Both the federal and provincial governments will be involved in funding the project.

Sprinkler snuffs blaze

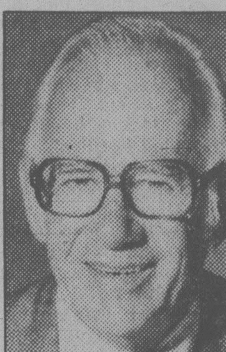
Firemen say a sprinkler system prevented a fire at Sooke Forest Products sawmill from spreading shortly before 1 a.m. today.

Sooke volunteer firefighters had the blaze out within minutes and spent almost an hour mopping up.

Sooke fire chief Lorne Fisk said the fire was probably started by an electrical short-circuit.

Damage was minimal.

Poll on Sunday shopping shows city not yet ready



McKERNAN

HIND

By AL FORREST

Wide-open Sunday shopping is an idea whose time has not yet come as far as Victoria is concerned, local merchants said today.

"We're certain to have it some day but I don't think Victoria is quite ready for it," said Bay manager Cam Young.

"Victoria is a little different than other communities."

He was commenting on legislation introduced by the provincial government allowing municipalities to bring in their own Sunday shopping bylaws.

"Wide-open Sunday shopping is about 10 to 15 years premature for Victoria," Young said.

"I am siding with my staff and the community in general on this question."

He said the pleasant atmosphere of the city would be disrupted by a shopping rush.

"But it will come some day."

Eaton's manager Reginald Hind holds a similar view.

"I'm not convinced wide open shopping on Sunday is needed yet although I know it would be a success if it happened. Americans go shopping on Sundays and the stores are full.

"They look upon it as an entertainment. They go browsing, have some ice cream and chat with their friends. Sunday shopping is a social occasion."

Hind said Sunday shopping might be appropriate in Victoria during the peak of the tourist season when visitors are looking for something to do.

In Esquimalt, merchants have pretty well solved the question already, said Don Scott, manager of Esquimalt Plaza Pharmacy.

"We have four businesses open in the plaza on Sunday but the rest want to stay closed. It works out fine. There doesn't seem to be any problem, although possibly there should be a referendum on the issue."

Jack McKernan, manager of Hillside Shopping Centre on the Victoria-Saanich border, said the merchants he has talked to believe that all levels of government should step aside and let store owners solve the problem.

"It's a matter of economics," he said. "No store will stay open if there's no money in it."

He predicted some stores would decide to stay closed on Sunday because of premium pay scales for employees.

"For example, Safeway has been opening on Sunday but, for a long time, they didn't open the Hillside Safeway because there was little demand.

On the other hand, he said, Beaver Lumber had a big crowd on Sunday and was obviously responding to a community need.

"I was working in the garden on Sunday and my shovel broke. So I went to Beaver to buy a new one. That's why I went shopping."

If governments must get involved in Sunday shopping, McKernan said, it should have been done on a regional basis.

"It will be a real hodge podge if they have separate votes in each municipality."

In Saanich, a spokesman for Woolco said there has been no pressure there for Sunday shopping.

A spokesman for K Mart declined comment.

Parents protest grading method

Letter grading is not good for children, a group of Victoria school parents has told the education ministry.

A submission from Nel van Elsakker, president of the South Park Family School Parents Association, notes that reporting is meant to summarize a child's performance and ability to show his weaknesses, strengths and means of improvement.

"We feel very strongly that letter grades will not accomplish this," van Elsakker said in a letter to the superintendent of public instruction. A copy was forwarded to School District 61 and trustees were to deal with it at their meeting tonight.

The writer also said grading as proposed will encourage peer competition rather than personal achievement.

"Nowhere does the administative draft deal with the emotional and social impact of grades which can in effect decrease motivation and interfere with learning."

Competition becomes the motivator instead of learning, but for some the result is defeatism, van Elsakker said.

The parents want more consideration in the latest administrative handbook for public schools.

Van Elsakker' submission questions the handbook's section on pupil evaluation and reports for the impact it may have on children.

District superintendent Allan Stables observed in a report to trustees there are three significant areas of concern on which there has been professional but little public input: letter grading, increased course requirements in Grades 11 and 12, and re-introduction of compulsory math 11.

The manual could reduce time in English instruction for junior levels, and does not increase time devoted to English elsewhere, Stables said.

He said the handbook puts more emphasis on secondary education than on elementary, and by trying to draw every aspect of education together into a single bible for administrators, it will inhibit local change.

Nonetheless, Stables finds the draft an improvement over previous administrative manuals.

Rescue unit for Ganges

The Canadian Coast Guard will have a year-round unit in Ganges Harbor starting in late May or early June.

A 41-foot launch, capable of a maximum estimated speed of 20 knots and a cruising range of 350 miles, will be used.

Frank Wilkins, now officer in charge of the coast guard's Kitsilano base, will become officer in charge of the new six-man unit.

Wilkins said today the unit will fill a service gap from Sidney to Active Pass. He said the unit will also be first in line for use in oil spills and tending navigational aids.

The new unit will replace the Zodiac inflatable rescue vessel and crew which has been stationed there the past two summers.

Wilkins said the launch has a cabin in the stern which will have to be removed so that people can be rescued from the water at the stern of the boat.

She is powered with twin turbocharged diesel engines each producing 260 horsepower.

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — A potential rout turned into a test of character and courage for Seve Ballesteros.

"This was my toughest week in golf," the dashing young Spaniard said Sunday after losing eight shots of a 10-shot advantage before recovering to win the 44th Masters golf tournament.

"I have a lot of heart," he said. "You must have a lot of heart to stand up under the pressure I have had this week.

"My ambition was to win the (British) Open, but I feel this is the hardest to win. There's so much pressure.

"Maybe I feel more at home in Europe."

The reigning British Open champion appeared headed for a record-setting victory under leaden skies Sunday, touring the front side of the 7,040-yard Augusta National Golf Club course in three-under 33 to take a 10-stroke edge over the field.

Then came a bogey at No.10, but there was no concern.

Worry began to enter his mind at No.12, the treacherous little par three guarded by water, which caught his tee shot. He dropped, and then needed two putts to get down. It was double bogey and only a five-shot lead after playing partner Jack Newton of Australia sank his second straight birdie putt.

It got even tighter. He went to the par-five 13th, a hole he birdied the first three days, and found water again, ultimately missing a 10-foot par putt.

Newton had another birdie, and further along the course, Gibby Gilbert was within two shots of the lead, after playing the 16th.

Seve said he started talking to himself.

"You are so stupid. What are you doing here?

"You were in a comfortable position.

"Now you are in trouble. You are going to lose the tournament."

He parred the 14th and then applied the clincher, two-putting from 20 feet for a birdie four on the 520-yard 15th.

Ballesteros parred out, finishing with a par 72 that left him with a 13-under 275 total, good enough for a four-shot victory over Newton, who closed out 68-279, and Gilbert, who went 67-279.

It made the handsome Spaniard, who celebrated his 23rd birthday last Wednesday, the youngest Masters champion — about three months younger than Jack Nicklaus was when he won the first of his record five Masters.

The victory earned Ballesteros $55,000 and gave him the 24th victory of his career.

It capped a week in which Ballesteros survived an erratic driver, often finding himself in the pine trees that line every fairway on the course.

Hubert Green, the former U.S. Open champion, closed with a five-under 67 to finish alone at 280 and Australian David Graham had a 70 to finish with a 281 total.

Six others were grouped at 283, including South African Gary Player, a three-time Masters winner who now has company among foreigners to win here. Player, who had a closing 70, was the only one before Sunday.

Others in the 283 group were former U.S. Open champion Jerry Pate with a final 67, Ben Crenshaw, Tom Kite and Larry Nelson each with 69s and Ed Fiori, who soared to a 73 after holding down second place after three rounds. Tom Watson's total was 284.

A nostalgic occasion

The lady hoped she wouldn't cry

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — It struck her square in the heart, that lady in Masters' green who joined a mob alongside the first fairway for the start of a head-to-head confrontation between two of golf's biggest stars — Arnold Palmer and Jack Nicklaus.

"This may be the last time you see them together in competition," she said. "I hope I don't cry."

Undoubtedly there were others, too, as a gallery of thousands followed their 18-hole trek Sunday in a final-round confrontation that had absolutely no bearing on the outcome of the 44th Masters golf tournament, a spring rite that boomed with Palmer in the 1950s and '60s and continuted to grow under the domination of Nicklaus in the '60s and '70s.

It didn't matter that Nicklaus, the only five-time champion, was 15 shots behind the leader, and four-time winner Palmer was 16.

Pride was at stake and Palmer, 50, took care of that early. He birdied two of the first four holes to put Nicklaus, 40, in a hole from which he never recovered.

Palmer finished with a three-under 69 and a total of 288, par for four trips around the Augusta National Golf Club layout. Nicklaus closed at 73-291.

The acknowledged applause all afternoon — at the tee, strolling the fairway and even more when they reached the green. It got to thunderous proportions at the finishing hole, where they accepted a standing ovation.

"Both Jack and I are very proud that the gallery was out in force like it was," Palmer said. "It's a tribute to the game . . . and the fact we've played for a long time. I feel a great deal of gratitude."

"Since we weren't involved in the tournament, it allowed people to see some golf early," Nicklaus said, quickly adding, "you better put quotes around golf."

Palmer said he didn't play particularly well Sunday, but it was a little better than usual.

"I guess I had a little more incentive to play better," he said

Bruins regain confidence

By The Canadian Press

"We have to concentrate on winning — and that's something we should be capable of doing."

And with that, Wayne Cashman and the Bruins headed back to Boston, confident home ice would, for a change, be the plus the Bruins needed to shake off the stubborn Pittsburgh Penguins.

Whichever team wins tonight's deciding game in the best-of-five National Hockey League playoff, the series will go down as one of the most unpredictable of Stanley Cup confrontations.

The Penguins finished 13th over all when the 21-team league's 80-game schedule ended and were not given half a chance against the fourth-place Bruins, who were 32 points ahead of Pittsburgh. But the Penguins shocked the Bruins by winning the series opener in Boston.

It's been back and forth since then. The Bruins evened the series at home before the teams travelled to Pittsburgh, where they split weekend games — the Penguins won 4-1 Saturday but the Bruins stormed back to post an 8-3 triumph Sunday night.

Pittsburgh goaltender Greg Millen, 22, a Toronto native, is one of the chief reasons the Penguins have come so close to upsetting the Bruins. But he was victimized for five first-period goals Sunday night.

Boston had a slight edge in shots on goal on the game, 29-26, but five of the 11 they took in the first period eluded Millen.

While Boston and Pittsburgh continue to do battle, seven other teams are taking advantage of a break until the start of Wednesday's quarter-finals to rest injured players.

Montreal Canadiens, Philadelphia Flyers, Minnesota North Stars and Chicago Black Hawks advanced to quarter-final play Friday by sweeping their series against Hartford Whalers, Edmonton Oilers, Toronto Maple Leafs and St. Louis Blues in the minimum three games.

New York Rangers, New York Islanders and Buffalo Sabres each lost once but finished off Atlanta Flames (5-2), Los Angeles Kings (6-0) and Vancouver Canucks (3-1) by winning fourth games in their playoffs Saturday.

Quarter-final pairings will not be known until the Boston-Pittsurgh winner is decided.

The team in the final eight which had the most points during the regular season, Philadelphia, plays the team with the fewest points, New York Rangers if Boston wins, or, Pittsburgh if the Penguins win. Second plays seventh, third meets sixth and fourth plays fifth.

The Canadiens, who will open at home against either Minnesota or Chicago, are thankful for the four-day rest. Star right winger Guy Lafleur bruised his left knee in the final game of the Hartford series and it remains uncertain whether he'll be ready to resume play by Wednesday.

The Sabres and Canucks battled through a physically-draining four-game showdown, during which Vancouver's Dave (Tiger) Williams drew a one-game suspension for allegedly hitting Buffalo coach Scotty Bowman over the head with his stick.

"Our team survived during the year in physical games and we survived again in this series," said Bowman."

Spotlight remains on Barry

By ERNIE FEDORUK

Through push rather than preference, Victoria Cougar centre Barry Pederson was thrust into the Western Hockey League spotlight last week.

His remarks to a Portland television interviewer created a furore before Thursday's game that concluded the Western Division's double round-robin semi-final playoffs. As a result, coach Jack Shupe suspended Pederson from the game — which wound up in Seattle Breakers' 6-5 victory over the Cougars and eliminated Portland Winter Hawks.

But Pederson, getting back into action, wouldn't give up the spotlight at the weekend.

The talented 18-year-old figured in "only" six of the eight Victoria goals as the Cougars opened the best-of-seven final in Memorial Arena with a pair of victories over Seattle. Pederson scored four goals in Saturday's 5-2 victory and then turned to playmaking Sunday, setting up linemates Daryl Coldwell and Greg Adams in a 3-0 win.

Bob Jansch, getting one Saturday, and Bob Smith, firing Sunday's third into an open net in the final minute of play, were the only other scorers.

Kevin Eastman performed steadily to record Sunday's shutout — his first of the playoffs. He made 25 stops, but three of them — at the expense of Joe Ward, Dan Held and Don Werbeniuk after glaring defensive mistakes — enabled Eastman to earn full marks.

Beset by personnel problems, the Breakers will have home-ice advantage for the next two games — Tuesday and Wednesday — in an effort to get back into contention. Game No. 5, if needed, will be played in Victoria Friday.

Seattle played both weekend games without the services of two regulars — Tom Stanger and John Neeld, the centre who topped Seattle scoring with 36 goals and 61 assists during the regular season.

Coach Monte Miron and other Seattle officials refused to comment on the pair's absence. It was learned, however, both were suspended for disciplinary reasons.

It is not known if Stanger and Neeld will be allowed to return to the lineup.

Seattle's problems also were compounded by a Sunday injury to Joe Ward, who scored 32 goals in only 59 regular-season games. Ward was knocked unconscious after colliding with Victoria's Torrie Robertson at mid-ice with 5½ minutes left in the game. Ward was taken off the ice on a stretcher and then rushed to hospital.

Dan Buie, Cougars' club doctor, said it was first feared Ward may have suffered a neck injury in addition to a concussion. Fortunately, Ward's recovery in the dressing room ruled out any serious neck injury but the player was taken to hospital for overnight observation.

Robertson, who took four stitches to close a cut above his top lip when checked by Ward earlier, said both players were turning at centre ice. "I looked up at the last second but he didn't," said Torrie.

Shupe dressed 16-year-old Paul Cyr, an affiliate who played with Nanaimo Clippers, and sat out Dan Deschenes on Sunday. Shupe also said centre John Newberry, the 18-year-old Victorian who enjoyed a record-breaking year with Nanaimo, will join Cougars at today's workout and will remain with the club for the rest of the playoffs.

The Eastern Division final between Regina Pats and Medicine Hat Tigers will get under way tonight in Regina. Medicine Hat clinched its advance from the semi-final Saturday with a 7-5 victory over Brandon that eliminated the Wheat Kings.

The fifth and deciding game between Pittsburgh and Boston in the first round of the National Hockey League playoffs will be shown on Channels 2 and 6 starting at 4:30 p.m.

Canadian yachtsmen spring big surprise

HYERES, France (Reuter) — Canada's Olympic Flying-Dutchman crew, helmed by Terry Mclaughlin of Toronto, edged out the Soviet Union's Valery Goussenko in a surprising win on the opening day of the Hyeras Olympic yachting week Sunday.

Sonics, Bucks really even

By The Associated Press

After four games, Milwaukee Bucks and Seattle SuperSonics are right back where they started — and the Sonics couldn't be happier.

"We've got to be favored now, going back to our house," said Seattle forward John Johnson after the Sonics beat the Bucks at Milwaukee 112-107 Sunday to even their best-of-seven National Basketball Association playoff series at two wins each.

The Sonics will be at home when the series resumes Tuesday night and also for the seventh game, if necessary.

"They thought they were going to win two here (in Milwaukee)," said Johnson. "They had played well for four quarters in every game and we had played only sporadically well. But we're the world champions and this team has a knack for rising to the occasion."

The Sonics led all the way Sunday, scoring the first 10 points of the game and building the lead to as many as 18 points before turning back a late Milwaukee rally. Seattle guard Gus Williams led all scorers with 32 points.

In the other Western Conference second-round series, Phoenix Suns staved off elimination by beating Los Angeles Lakers 127-101. Los Angeles leads 3-1.

In the East, Boston and Philadelphia both moved within one victory of advancing to the conference finals.

The Celtics clobbered Houston Rockets 100-81 to go up 3-0 and the '76ers beat the Hawks at Atlanta 107-83 to take a 3-1 lead. Both can end their series at home, Boston playing tonight and Philadelphia Tuesday.

The Sonics-Bucks series has been remarkably even. Two games have gone to overtime, with each team winning once. Each club has won one game at home and one on the road. And each team has scored the exact same number of points — 429.

Besides Williams's 32 points — and 22 points and 15 rebounds by forward Lonnie Shelton — the Sonics also got 20 points from guard Dennis Johnson and 15 from reserve backcourt man Fred Brown.

Quebec skiers dominate meet

COURTENAY (CP) — Phillipe Martineau, 18, of St. Eustache, Que. won the over-all senior men's competition of the Canadian freestyle ski championship on Mt. Washington during the weekend.

Bruce Langereis, 21, of Vancouver was second and Ernie Phillips, 24, of Coquitlam finished third.

Alain Laroche, 16, of Lac Beauport, Que., was over-all winner in the intermediate men's competition followed by Peter Henry, 16, of Red Deer, Alta. and Jean-Marc Padovani, 17, of Montreal.

Junior men's winner was Chris Coombs, 14, of Pickering, Ont. Phillipe Laroche, 14, of Quebec City was second and David Thompson, of Calgary placed third.

Louise Barma, 17, of Lac Beauport led the field of senior women's competitors, finishing ahead of last year's champion Marie Claude-Asselin, 18, of St. Agate, Que., and Peggy Meyers, 17, of Vancouver.

Janice Cannon, 15, of Mississauga, Ont., was the first and only place finisher announced in the junior women's category.

The three-day event finished Sunday with aerial competition. Andre Clements, of LaTuque, Que., won the senior men's event, followed by Kevin Waldal, 19, of Regina and John Buhler, 18, of Calgary.

Alain Laroche led intermediate men's aerial followed by Rocky Otis of Val David, Que. and Henry.

Coombs and Phillipe Laroche, first and second over-all in junior events, finished the aerials in the same order.

Barma, Claude-Asselin and Meyers finished the senior women's aerials in the same order while Karen Deroche, 16 of North Bay, Ont. won the junior women's event.

Phillips and Langereis had dominated senior men's ballet skiing Saturday, finishing first and second. Phillips finished second in the moguls race Friday.

Smith wins handily

ONTARIO, Calif. (AP) — Roy Smith of Victoria outdueled Bill Schmitt and long-time stock car driver Hershel McGriff in winning the first half of the Twin 200 Sunday at Ontario Motor Speedway.

Johnny Rutherford, piloting a radical ground effects car, overwhelmed the field and easily captured the 200-mile race for championship cars.

The victory moved Smith past Schmitt in the battle for the point lead on the NASCAR West stock car circuit.

Schmitt, the defending point champion from Reading, Calif., started the race on the pole position and held off Smith most of the way until the 28th lap when a blown engine brought out the only yellow flag of the 200-kilometre race.

Both Schmitt and Smith pitted during the yellow flag and trailed Rick McCray and McGriff when the green flag came back out five laps later.

McGriff took the lead the next time around, but Smith and Schmitt quickly moved past again and Smith's Oldsmobile began to pull steadily away.

He wound up winning by a comfortable 11.7-second margin. McGriff, driving a Dodge, finished third, another 4.5 seconds behind.

Smith's average speed was 216.932 kilometres an hour.

Rutherford was followed by Tom Sneva. Gordon Johncock was third, followed by Spike Gelhausen and Tom Bagley.

Seasprays top Ducks to finish perfect season

Victoria Seasprays, the Canadian Division champions of the Pacific Northwest Field Lacrosse League, wrapped up their inaugural season on an unbeaten note Sunday, bouncing Oregon State University Ducks 16-7 at Centennial Stadium.

Seasprays, who won all 14 league games this season, started the weekend off with a 16-13 decision over Golden State Lacrosse Club of San Francisco at the same site Saturday.

"We were in complete control today — no problem," said Victoria general-manager George Grover after the win over Ducks.

Kevin Alexander led the attack for Seasprays, who were ahead 8-4 at half time, with five goals and one assist while Jim Lynch contributed three goals and three assists. Single tallies were added by Tarey Pollock, Mike Thomas, Tom Woods, Jim Lightbody, Jeevan Dillon, Gord Taylor, Walt Christianson and Art Webster, who also had five assists.

Team captain Doug Crandall was top gun for the University of Oregon with four goals.

On Saturday, Alexander and rookie goalie Scott Marshall helped pace the way to victory.

Alexander scored six goals and added two assists while Marshall, playing his first game of field lacrosse, came up with an outstanding effort as the Victoria club took a 12-8 lead at half time.

Lynch added three goals and four assists while Ron MacNeil and Taylor each connected twice. Single tallies were added by Owen Richman, Webster and Pollock.

Greg Madding led the Golden Gate attack with two goals and four assists.

Seasprays now have a two-week break before competing in the Pacific Northwest tournament Apr. 26-27 in Portland.

Harvey hero in 'Caps win

Times News Services

Goalkeeper David Harvey made his first appearance for the Vancouver Whitecaps in a shootout Saturday and emerged the hero of the day as the defending North American Soccer League champions edged Seattle Sounders 1-0 before 27,602 fans at Empire Stadium.

Willie Johnston and Steve Kember both scored in the shootout after regulation time ended with a 0-0 score and Harvey, signed this season from Leeds United of the English First Division, stopped four Seattle shooters to give the Whitecaps their first win.

Harvey was aided somewhat by Seattle's Steve Buttle and Bruce Rioch, who both hit goalposts in their shootout attempts and he stopped Alan Hudson and Roger Davies by diving on their shots taken in the penalty area.

Johnston, who was the second Whitecap in the shootout rotation, drew Seattle goalkeeper Jack Brand to his right side and then slipped the ball by him as the keeper moved out to cut down the angle. Kember just blasted his shot and the ball bounced off Brand and high into the net.

In Atlanta, Jeff Bourne's goal at 30:30 gave the Chiefs a 2-1 lead and they eventually won 3-1 over Toronto Blizzard.

In other games, Detroit Express won 1-0 over New England Tea Men, Chicago Sting edged Tampa Bay Rowdies 2-1, California Surf shaded Tulsa Roughnecks 3-2, San Diego Socker clipped Memphis Rogues 2-1, Fort Lauderdale Strikers blanked Rochester Lancers 2-0, Los Angeles Aztecs defeated Portland Timbers 1-0 and Dallas Tornado persevered to record a 1-0 win over Houston Hurricane.

In Sunday's play, New York Cosmos prevailed 2-1 over Minnesota Kicks.

In the only other game Sunday, Washington Diplomats beat Philadelphia Fury 3-1.

Mick learns lesson well

By ERNIE FEDORUK

Defending champion Dave Mick picked up some helpful advice here and there, but he did his own thing on the greens Sunday to walk away with medallist honors in the 31st annual Vancouver Island Open match-play golf championship.

The golfing dentist from Royal Colwood found the greens to his liking and needed only 30 putts en route to a four-under-par 68 at Gorge Vale and lead 31 other successful qualifiers into the head-butting match play that opens next Sunday at Cedar Hill.

Mick, bidding for a record third straight claim on the CFAX Trophy, finished two shots ahead of Gorge Vale's Jeff Jones. Jamie Harper, 16 and the fourth in a line of golfing Harpers from Nanaimo, finished third.

Scores of 80 or better were needed to qualify. An 80, however, didn't offer much of a guarantee. Only four of the 10 players who scored 80 were drawn into the championship field.

It took a net 77 to qualify for the handicap division.

Mick said he relied "on typical qualifying philosphy. I just tried to hit the ball well and tried to get the weight on all my putts."

He did both well.

He passed out assists for his steady clubwork into the greens to Gorge Vale professional Earl Davies and an amateur, Dick Austin.

Taking a playing lesson from Davies on Saturday, Mick said the pro straightened out a minor flaw in his takeaway swing. Austin, playing with Mick in a Sunday morning warmup, noticed that Mick was leaving the face of his clubs "slightly open."

Mick "made the most" of both hints and, consequently, never experienced any trouble on the Gorge course.

As usual, the qualifying round took its toll of prominent names, including a pair of former champions — Lawrie Kerr of Colwood and Grant Milliken of Gorge Vale. Milliken scored an 82 while Kerr had to take 83 blows.

Fred Worthington, the 1976 medallist; former City Amateur champ Brian Gandy; Glen Meadows pro Bill Penny; Dave Anderson and southpaw Hal Jacobson, a pair of former finalists, and Marty Richards, also of Glen Meadows, were other notable casualties.

Amy loves that rain

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Amy Alcott once broke the record for women at the famed Pebble Beach Golf Links, and she said the weather in Raleigh on Sunday reminded her of what she had experienced there.

No one could take issue with that after the Santa Monica, Calif., resident, splashed her way to a three-under-par 69 to take home the $15,000 winner's share in a $100,000 women's golf tournament.

Her 54-hole total of 206 was 10-under par and four strokes better than runner-up Donna Caponi Young.

Sandra Post, a native of Oakville, Ont., was fourth, finishing with a final-day 74 and a 212 total to win $5,000.

"I usually like playing in this kind of weather," said a drenched Alcott, 24, following her romp over the rain-soaked North Ridge Country Club.

She entered the final round of the three-day event with a single-stroke lead over Young and Post. But they fell far behind early in the round and never could catch up.

In rain that at times became a torrential downpour, Alcott bogied just one hole — the third — and birdied the seventh, eighth, 11th and 13th. The last two made the remainder of the trip academic.

The winner's cheque increased Alcott's earnings so far this year to $67,986, lifting her to third place on the money list.

The best round of the day was the 67 carded by Dot Germain, who emerged from the pack to finish five shots behind Alcott at 211.

Maltbie's 65 winner as tourney washed out

HATTIESBURG, Miss. (AP) — Rain and soggy course conditions forced the cancellation of play on Sunday for the Magnolia Classic golf tournament and PGA officials declared the tournament concluded.

Roger Maltbie of San Jose, California, had shot a five-under-par 65 to lead after 18 holes of play on Thursday and was awarded $4,500 or half the planned winner's purse.

"It was easily my best round of the year," Maltbie said after Thursday's round.

Play in the 72-hole second tour tournament was cancelled Friday and Saturday because of heavy rains.

Finishing second at 66 and picking up $2,700 in prize money was Lee Carter of Dallas, Tex. Ten golfers were tied at 68, including Dwight Nevil, who won the tournament in 1973 and 1974.

Stadler enters Open

MONTREAL (CP) — Bearded Craig Stadler, two-time victor on the U.S. professional golf tour this year, has confirmed his entry for the 1980 Canadian Open, John Dobson, Royal Canadian Golf Association tournament chairman, has announced.

Vikings, Gorge surprise winners

Both underdogs won by the same count Sunday during first division semi-final playoffs in the Vancouver Island Soccer League.

University of Victoria Vikings, who finished third in the regular season, toppled league-champion Victoria West 2-1 at Heywood Avenue Park and Gorge, who finished fourth, bounced runner-up Victoria Athletics 2-1 at Blanshard Field.

Dave Secco gave Vikings a 1-0 lead at half time by connecting on a penalty shot following a hand-ball at the 27-minute mark but Steve Forslund equallized for Wests at 52 minutes on another penalty after Frank Woods was pulled down in the penalty area.

At 63 minutes, Mickey Morris collected a pass from John Dyson and scored the winner on a chip shot that sailed over the head of West goalie Jim de Goede.

Wests dominated the play offensively but couldn't penetrate the tight UVic defence centred around Gordie Horth and Doug Adlem.

Mike Collis scored both goals for Gorge. He poked the first one in at 16 minutes after a cross from Stu Holroyd sparked a goal-mouth scramble and then counted the winning goal at 84 minutes.

Dave McCaig scored on a penalty shot at 55 minutes to square things up for Athletics.

Mid-fielder Glen Johnson set Collis up for the winner after a foul was called on Athletics. Johnson put the ball down quickly and kicked it before Athletics, who had dominated most of the game, could get into position. Collis collected the ball, beat the one defender who managed to get back and scored.

The playoff final is scheduled for Sunday.

In second division semi-finals, Lance Engstrom and Alan Massie scored to give Port Alberni a 2-0 shutout over host Prospect Lake and Nanaimo City downed visiting Duncan 3-1 in overtime. Frank Higgins, Ron Sage and Doug Muirhead scored for Nanaimo and Frank Hartmann replied for Duncan. The game was tied 1-1 at the end of regulation time.

Braves edged Campbell River 2-1 at Campbell River and Lakehill nudged Oak Bay 2-1 at Hampton Park in third division semi-finals.

Cosmopolitan Royals won the fourth division playoff crown by defeating Castaways 3-1 at Topaz Park. Russ Ball of Royals and Darryl Lister of Castaways scored in the first half. Peter Wheaton scored the winning goal for Royals and Joe Milligan chipped in the insurance tally.

Gymnasts win six titles

BURNABY — Vancouver Island gymnasts collected four individual and two team titles at the British Columbia age-group gymnastics championships at the B.C. Institute of Technology at the weekend.

Elissa Bradley of Victoria captured the argo girls' over-all crown and helped the Island team to a victory in the same category.

Greg Stirzaker of Port Alberni captured midget boys' laurels and helped the Island squad to victory while clubmate Karen Paquette topped the tyro girls' class.

Copeland's performance in winning the open men's competition was quite remarkable as the Nanaimo coach had not competed since 1973 and took only two weeks to prepare for the meet.

Elissa Bradley, who is 11, is considered one of the province's most promising young gymnasts with national potential and is coached in Victoria by former Olympic coach John Herb.

Current Canadian coach Hardy Fink's Port Alberni squad did well at the meet. As well as two titles from Stirzaker and Paquette, his young gymnasts Carrie Chernomaz (argo girls) and Quincy Vrecko (midget boys) placed second and third respectively.

Decade for women entering its second half

elizabeth forbes

The United Nations Decade for Women started in 1975 at a world conference in Mexico City during International Women's Year. Remember?

At the same time it was decided that half way through the decade, in this year of 1980, a second major conference would be held to evaluate progress made and obstacles encountered in attaining objectives of the decade — equality, development and peace. Right?

Well! The date has been set and the locale chosen for that second world conference.

It is to be convened by the UN general assembly in Copenhagen, Denmark, from July 14 to 30, and already it is assured of official representatives and observers from many developed and developing countries around the world.

A plan of action for the second half of the decade, 1980-85, will be drawn up, stressing a sub-theme, Employment, Health and Education.

At the same time, UN non-governmental organizations (NGOs) will organize a forum to be held concurrently with the conference.

Purpose of this forum will be to enable men and women from all geographic areas and diverse backgrounds to exchange information on the present situation of women.

It will also devise strategies for change, particularly in those areas under discussion at the world conference.

Already more than 40 NGOs have taken part in a survey carried out by the committee on the UN Decade for Women, and a report has been presented to the Copenhagen preparatory committee.

This survey points out that the drive for advancement of women is still an elitist movement and has not involved the average woman.

LUCILLE MAIR
. . . the half-way mark

That while some progress has been made, the world community continues, to a distressing degree, to be deprived of the full participation and talents of that most overlooked asset of nations — women.

Listed are obstacles to women's advancement that appear frequently in reports on the status of women throughout the world. They include:

Prevailing attitudes toward women.

Leaders' unawareness of the contribution women make to the society in which they live, in unpaid work particularly in agriculture, in the home and in non-formal and traditional sectors which are not part of national economic statistics.

Many international and national planners and decision makers do not understand the needs of women at the local level.

Lack of time on the part of the average woman for activities outside the home, and lack of knowledge about how to bring about change in her position and ways in which to meet her problems.

To overcome these obstacles the committee on the UN Decade for Women makes a number of recommendations for inclusion in a program of action during the next half of the decade.

It suggests that such a program be based on recommendations made by women who live in local communities in urban and rural areas and that these be tailored to available resources.

That only a limited number of specific attainable goals be attempted; special emphasis be placed on regional approach and programs and projects take into account the cultural patterns of each region.

Suggested priorities for 1980-85 include universal basic education and training; technical help using local resources and women's groups to assist women to meet their needs as determinded by themselves.

Communication to provide linkage for women with each other and with sources of new information; emphasis on training for income-producing skills and specific ways to secure more food of better quality.

On the subject of health the committee calls for universal primary health care for all and the inclusion of basic health services in all national plans.

It also asks that the elimination of practices and social conditions detrimental to women's health and the need to provide women with information to assist them in meeting their own health requirements be included in the discussion program at the Copenhagen conference.

Out of these priorities another list was drawn up to cover the sub-theme of the conference.

A strong plea is made for elimination of the sex segregated labor market and the disporportion of low-paying jobs, through a broader definition of labor as a productive activity.

Also that since technological change has displaced workers, especially women, new efforts are needed to promote appropriate technology which will assist them.

And that more opportunities should be made available for the growing number of migrant female labor in all countries, with particular emphasis on housing for single women workers.

Emphasis should be placed, it is suggested, on increased non-formal education for women which makes greater use of local resources.

Postscript: Lucille Mair of Jamaica has been named by the United Nations as secretary-general for the 1980 world conference of the Decade for Woman in Copenhagen this July.

She has represented her country at a number of UN conferences including the 1975 world conference of International Women's Year in Mexico City.

In 1973 Dr. Mair was named Jamaican representative to the commission for social development and in the same year, to the general assembly's third committee (humanitarian, social and cultural).

As Jamaica's delegate she attended the international conference against apartheid held in Lagos, Nigeria, in 1977, and she served as rapporteur of the non-aligned bureau meeting in Havana in 1978.

She was Jamaica's deputy permanent representative in New York from 1973 to 1978 and was elected chairman of the third committee at the 32nd session of the general assembly.

Prior to her present appointment Dr. Mair was Jamaican ambassador to Cuba.

Note — Facts for this column were taken from the current issue of Widening Horizons, published by the International Federation of Business and Professional Women, a world organization that holds NGO Category One standing with the United Nations.

Glynn Wolfe, the world's most marrying man, plans to tie the knot next month for the 24th time. Wolfe, 71, said his 23rd wife, Maria Chavez Wolfe, 21, left him last November following the birth of a daughter, his 39th child. He was granted a divorce from her last week in California. Wolfe says he will now marry 17-year-old Donna Hessee. Wolfe's longest marriage lasted five years, and some have been as brief as five days. The Guinness Book of World Records lists Wolfe as the most marrying man.

Harriet Stratemeyer Adams (also known as Carolyn Keene) of Maplewood, N.J., who at age 87 is now working on her 59th Nancy Drew mystery, will be guest of honor at the celebration of her heroine's 50th anniversary April 16. Five hundred guests have been invited by Simon & Schuster, which is publishing the books for children 8 to 12 years old in paperback for the first time. Few if any in that age group will be on hand. Adams said that although she had often asked advice from her children and children's children "on subjects they're more knowledgeable about than I," only one of her 10 grandchildren is still a teen-ager.

Adams

The thank-yous and tributes to her flew thickly Tuesbut Louise Nevelson only saw and heard it all later on videotape. Trapped in a traffic-stalled limousine, the 80-year-old artist was more than an hour late for the dedication of the Louise Nevelson Laboratory for Cancer Immunobiology at Memorial Sloan-Kettering Cancer Centre.

Canadian diplomat Kenneth Taylor received the 1980 Elise and Walter Haas International Award at the University of California's 112th Charter Day. Taylor, who as Canada's ambassador to Iran pulled off the rescue of six Americans by sneaking them out as Canadian nationals, told 6,000 persons attending the annual ceremony that Jimmy Carter's latest sanctions against Iran were "the next logial step" in the conflict.

When Noel Moisan says he will vote yes in the Quebec referendum, most Canadians reply "so what." But Moisan is a figure to be reckoned with in Quebec — for 13 years he was the mascot snowman at the Quebec City winter carnival. Moisan, named chairman of the yes committee for Taschereau riding in Quebec city, says: "The status quo is no longer possible."

Dear Abby:

This is in protest of your ignorant evaluation of a time-honored art which you labeled "the brutal and bloody business of torturing and killing animals for sport and entertainment — bullfighting."

What an outrageously ethnocentric remark! Bullfighting first appeared as early as 2,000 years before Christ. Since then it has flourished in Spain, Portugal and Latin America. For centuries, kings and noblemen as well as commoners have involved themselves in that sport.

Abby, as a foreigner, it is unfair for you to criticize the customs of another country. In Spain, bullfighting is considered an art, not merely a sport. When you say the animals are "tortured," it shows that you don't know anything about bullfighting. The bulls used in the arena are bred especially for their ferocity to kill men! It takes enormous skill and courage for a 175-pound man armed with only a cape and sword to face a wild bull weighing 2,000 pounds. And when the time comes to kill the animal, the men often kill the bull with a single thrust of the sword!

C. Fernandez

Dear C.:

Many wrote to defend bullfighting. Read on more about the controversy:

Dear Abby:

I must commend you for speaking out against bullfighting. Unfortunately, there are people in the world who believe it is good entertainment to watch dogfights, cockfights, etc. There are even people who condone using live rabbits for training greyhounds (for dog racing). The rabbits are put onto the track with no chance of escaping, and although exhausted, the terrified creatures run until they are caught and torn to shreds!

There is absolutely no justification for these barbaric acts against animals. They demoralize human beings and lower us to the days of the gladiators when animals were pitted against each other as the crowd roared in excitement and amusement.

Keep up the good work, Abby. The world needs more people like you.

Jeri Zupancic

Dear Abby:

I don't see anything wrong with bullfighting. They feed the bulls well, let them live for years and then put them in the ring where they are killed instantly. I think putting animals in a zoo is more cruel.

Spanish Student

Dear Abby:

In your country you fatten up your bulls, run them up a chute at the stockyards and hit them over the head with an ax before they become hamburger or steaks.

Your bulls have no chance to fight for their lives. Ours have. Ole!

So you're going to do some building?

Our house addition is now an accomplished fact, and very pleased indeed we are with it. We came out of the operation with a new bedroom which gives us the space we've yearned for, also with two well-appointed bathrooms. That the job went so well is largely due to the hard work and the finnangling of a contractor-carpenter by the name of George.

With scribble and sketches on that universal carpenter's notepad, the side of a plank, George solved difficulties that came not as single spies but in battalions. He contrived, he ferreted out acceptable substitutes when this item or that was out of stock and would be until approximately kingdom-come.

Also — and for this we thank him — he dealt honestly with a couple who, in all aspects of house construction, were complete babes in the woods.

We had heard plenty of horror stories, of course. Everyone does who undertakes a building operation.

The construction world was infested by sharpies. In it, eternal vigilance was the price of safety. The over-trustful might find themselves left holding a large and empty bag.

Our first meeting with George had left a favorable impression. But how could we be sure he wasn't a wolf in sheep's clothing?

George, in his calm way, settled that matter for us. He gave us a set of guages and measures designed to test a contracting builder's reliability, and insisted that we follow them.

In the hope that these 'Thou shalts' and 'Thou shalt nots' may prove useful to others who contemplate building, I'll pass them on to you.

First, get at least three estimates.

Then talk to someone who has had work done by the contractor of your choice. Were they satisfied with his performance?

Inspect his work. Ask plentiful questions. Were there lengthy delays and hangups? How close were his estimates, and how firm his prices?

("If he's honest," said George, "he'll welcome a check-up. If he backs away from giving you a chance to investigate, watch out!")

Very well, then. You have fixed on your builder. Now, consider the form of agreement that you wish to enter into.

You have three choices.

Number One is a cost-plus contract, in which you undertake to pay for all materials, plus an overall percentage to cover labor.

Number Two consists of a contract with a firm price set for the finished job.

The third method calls on the householder to pay for all materials as the job proceeds, and to pay his contractor-builder set wages.

"That's the way I like to work," George said of Number Three. "I find it more comfortable, myself, and I think there are some advantages for you people. It's more flexible. You're not locked into a set quality or grade of material, as you might be in one of the other two agreements."

George leaned a haunch against a stack of two-by-sixes and continued to expound. "Let's say you decide on a better grade of bathroom fixtures than you'd originally planned." (Here Win and I exchanged guilty glances) No sweat! You're not tied to a contract that's going to be dislocated if you change your mind."

So we settle on Option Number Three, which worked out very well for us.

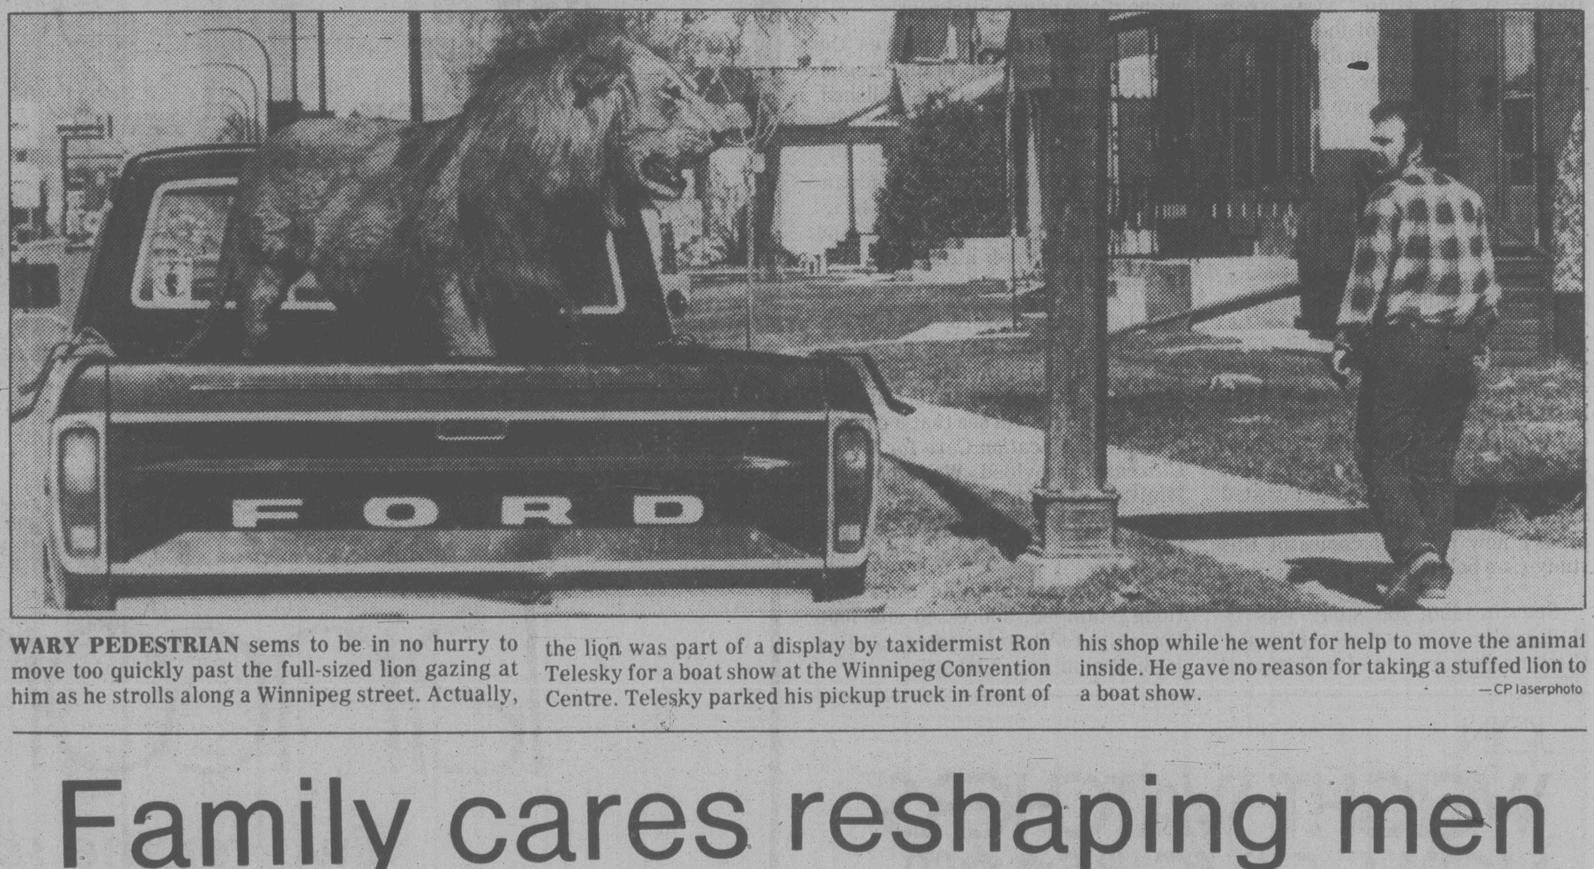
As George had forseen, we changed our minds, not once, but numerous times, before the last nail was hammered and the final fixture bolted into place.

This brings us to another piece of advice which George gave us. It may strike you as fantastic, but it's based on long and detailed experience in dealing with home-builders and improvers.

When you've figured out your estimate for labor and material costs, grit your teeth and add a cool 30 per cent to your total. There are, first, those changes of mind, which can be expensive. Also, the cost of materials in today's inflation-ridden markets is steadily rising. The item that cost $50 this week is likely to set you back $55 next week.

"For instance," said George, with a nod aloft. "Look at those roof trusses. I'd figured on ordering them from a truss-making outfit, but they're so rushed they couldn't deliver for months. So I made them myself . . . and they're going to cost you more."

Ah well! We bit the bullet, and thanked the gods for sending us an honest man. Next week, I'll give you the other wing of a bird that can, depending on your choice of builder, be a succulent turkey or a vulture.



WARY PEDESTRIAN sems to be in no hurry to move too quickly past the full-sized lion gazing at him as he strolls along a Winnipeg street. Actually, the lion was part of a display by taxidermist Ron Telesky for a boat show at the Winnipeg Convention Centre. Telesky parked his pickup truck in front of his shop while he went for help to move the animal inside. He gave no reason for taking a stuffed lion to a boat show.

Family cares reshaping men

By VICTORIA IRWIN
Christian Science Monitor

WELLESLEY, MASS. — Today's man is new and improved, right? He is more sensitive, more willing to help with household chores, more involved with his children and ready to say "no" to his company when work might interfere with family life.

Well, maybe. Statistics show that men did 42 minutes a week more housework and child care in 1975 than in 1965. Some sociologists say men are weighing company transfers with their family in mind rather than merely job advancement. And in a survey of married working men and women, just as many men as women said paid work conflicted with family life.

"The shift in male behavior is small," admitted Dr. Joseph Pleck, program director at the Wellesley College Center of Research on Women. "There has been a slight increase in the amount of time men spend doing housework and child care."

But Pleck thinks the "slight increase" could be more significant than it looks on paper, considering the fact that families are smaller today and housework has been made easier by technology.

"And there is a substantial drop in the time women spend doing housework," he said. "Men are certainly doing a higher proportion of the work."

Pleck told of a survey completed in 1975 that indicated that men with working wives do no more housework than men whose wives didn't work. But a later survey in 1977 seems to show that there has been some increase among husbands whose wives work.

Pleck disagrees with the traditional view of men as obsessed with jobs.

"Men say things that indicate that their family is more significant than their job," Pleck said. "The quality of family life has more impact on his well-being than his job."

Pleck pointed out that this doesn't always mean a man is more active with his family, but if society is going to devise strategies such as flexible work schedules to let men become more involved in family, then men may be ready to take them.

What is the impetus behind the changes in men's roles? Pleck thinks the bulk of change has been brought about by concern over the status of the family.

"The public is concerned whether the family (as an institution) is breaking up," Pleck said.

The proportion of families that elect to have children has remained about the same in the past few years (about 70 per cent), but these families have fewer children. There also is an increase in divorces and separations. Nearly 45 per cent of the children born today will spend at least some of their childhood in a single-parent family, said Pleck.

One of the changes evoked by the women's movement has been to include women more fully in the basic value of equality. The value of the family also is basic to Americans, and now men are being expected to share in that value.

Pleck also pointed to a historical change in families that has prompted a change in the man's role "In the early part of the century, the paid-work role was monopolized by men," he said. "Women's productivity was limited to support for her husband and taking care of the family."

Now that more and more women are entering the workplace, it increasingly is difficult for the traditional family to exist when work demands intrude. Increased involvement in household tasks and child care by men is one answer to this problem, along with new options in work schedules, job sharing and parental leave for both men and women.

The idea that men can and should spend more time in a family relationship has hit a responsive chord, Pleck said. He has heard it called "Kramerization," after the popular movie Kramer vs. Kramer that follows a father's initiation into single parenthood.

And as men adopt new roles around the house, they have to learn to swallow male pride. When women's roles changed in the past decade, it primarily was toward tasks that have a higher monetary value, such as jobs and promotions, that weren't available before.

Defects give a hard lesson in reality

The birth of a baby with a serious defect is a major blow to the parents. Birth defects are due to difficulties at the time of labor and delivery, abnormalities resulting from the ingestion of certain drugs or alcohol by the mother, or inherited faults caused by defective genes or chromosomes passed from a parent.

The presence of possible genetic disorders in future offspring poses a real problem for parents who have a genetically abnormal child, or who have known genetic problems in family members.

The labor-related and drug-induced fetal abnormalities can probably be avoided in subsequent pregnancies by avoiding drugs and using Caesarian delivery. The prevention of inherited disease is a more difficult problem.

A few genetic defects, particularly metabolic ones, can be detected shortly after birth. Screening is done routinely in B.C. and the subsequent early treatment offers the child considerable protection from his or her disease.

Ultrasound can determine if there are physical defects in the unborn child. It is not foolproof and is not universally available. Examination of a sample of the fluid in the 'bag of waters' can detect many chromosomal abnormalities, but this test is not without risk and is generally reserved for cases where a defect is suspected. If the child is affected an abortion is usually indicated.

Genetic counselling is of great value to prospective parents, particularly if they have produced a defective child. Many of these people wish to have another child, but are terrified that it too may be defective.

Many genetically transmitted diseases can be predicted by analysis of the parents chromosomes, and some couples may be advised to avoid pregnancy. The geneticist is able to determine the probability of a subsequent child being affected. Probabilities are usually in the 1% or 2% range, but may reach 100%. In some cases the chances increase as the mother gets older.

Armed with this information the parents are able to decide whether to accept the risk. Knowing that a significant risk is present allows tests to be done early in the pregnancy and blighted embryos can be removed, allowing the parents to try again.

Ont. senior homes offer Vacation Care

Many families taking care of older family members find it difficult, if not impossible, to get away on a decent vacation. the older member is unable to travel with them and satisfactory, temporary alternative care is not easy to arrange.

More and more homes for senior citizens are taking practical and successful steps to do something about this. Of the 181 senior homes in Ontario 79 now offer some variation of what are called "Vacation Care" programs.

The programs offer both young and old vacations in keeping with their capabilities. While the family goes off for more vigorous fun, the older member is accommodated, on a temporary basis, in a Home for Senior Citizens.

In the Home, older persons enjoy a real change in a new environment of good care and companionship — a "vacation" away from home while the rest of the family is away. Vacationing families are assured that their older relatives are safe and well taken care of in their absence.

One of the earliest programs was started as a pilot project back in 1971 by the Regional Municipality of Niagara (I know of only one earlier program of a similar nature — at Baycrest Centre in Toronto).

Regional Niagara recently completed a study to determine the effectiveness of this service and how it can be further improved and "to share our experience in Niagara and meet the requests for information about the program from other interested areas". Such "other interested areas" now may get copies of this study (See below).

Spearheading the study was D. H. Rapelje, Director of the Senior Citizens Department for Regional Niagara and Councillor E. E. Mitchelson.

The Region has had a long-standing commitment to provide support to seniors and their families so that the senior can remain in the community for the longest possible time. The study shows that "Vacation Care" provides valuable new help in furthering this policy.

Normally available to persons 60 years and older, the program is offered on a year around basis. Vacation Care residents receive room and board, medical care and supervision and have access to all the Home's facilities and services.

Residents or their families are expected to pay when possible but no applicant is excluded for lack of funds.

Vacation Care is probably one of the simplest programs to introduce within a long-term-care institution; it can be started without renovation and without any new capital cost.

The Niagara study proves the value of the program. In that Region the program now is well-established, running smoothly and steadily growing in popularity.

It likely could operate to advantage in your community with benefits to seniors, their families and the community at large. Why not investigate it?

Lawrence Crawford, Senior Gerontologist, Ontario Government, tells me that if other municipalities or seniors homes (anywhere in Canada) write to him he will see that a copy of A Study of Vacation Care for Senior Citizens is provided. Write hom at: Ministry of Community and Social Services, 700 Bay St., Toronto, M5G 1Z6.

Land of fantasy in a tree house

Many people have fond memories associated with a tree house. When they were children, they would climb up the ladder and escape into a land of fantasy.

There was nobody there to tell them to tidy their clothes or brush their hair. They could do whatever they liked in their own little house.

They told stories to each other, and spent a lot of time dreaming. Sometimes they read books or made drawings of things they could see from the little house's window.

It was a cozy place, away from adults.

If you have fond memories of such a place, even if it didn't look exactly like this TREEHOUSE designed by Clara Latham, you may enjoy making this lovely wall hanging. Basically simple applique, this fabric picture has lots of quilting stitches which give it a dream-like feeling.

Clara's tree is a big, welcoming, old sturdy tree which holds up our little house very securely.

We have given the tree lots of green leaves, simplified and detailed with quilting stitches, to give it an aura of privacy. We have also provided a cozy carpet of green grass and a cool, blue sky with white clouds to make a perfect summer day.

By making it, you'll utilize your quilting and applique skills. A full-size blueprint type pattern is available from which to draft your actual pattern pieces.

You can either use your scraps for the various parts, or buy a coordinated collection. You won't need very much of any one fabric.

Clara has provided complete directions — take it from there and add your unique touches to make it truly yours.

Patterns, etc. available: No. CL-1115: The Treehouse, designed by Clara Latham. Pattern drawing includes instructions for enlarging to actual size, and directions for making wall hanging. #3.20.

CL-1115BP (Blueprint): Full size rendering of TREEHOUSE design from which actual-size pattern pieces may be taken. Blueprint only. $2.20 or both of the above $5.00.

LONDON (UPI) — The size and color of a woman's underwear may be a good clue to her home town in the U.K.

A survey shows women in southern England prefer bikini-type panties, while Scots favor high-waisted "passion killers."

The survey also showed Welsh women favor bright colors, while Londoners buy a new pair of knickers every seven weeks.

Rookie wins first start as Reds sweep Braves

Times News Services

Rookie Charlie Liebrandt hurled a five-hitter in his first major league start as Cincinnati Reds defeated Atlanta Braves 5-0 Sunday to sweep their season-opening four-game National League baseball series.

Liebrandt, a 23-year-old left-hander, struck out five and walked three. Phil Niekro was the loser, allowing all five runs in 5 1-3 innings, including a solo homer by Johnny Bench, his first of the season.

The Reds scored twice in the third on singles by Dave Concepcion and Dan Driessen. Bench led off the sixth with his homer, and the Reds scored two more on a single by Ken Griffey later in the inning.

In other National League action, Jim Rooker gave up five hits in 6 1-3 innings and hit his seventh career home run, leading Pittsburgh Pirates to a 3-0 decision over St. Louis Cardinals.

Pete Falcone and Neil Allen combined on a five-hitter and Joel Youngblood drove in two runs to help New York Mets beat Chicago Cubs 5-0.

Ellis Valentine slammed a 10th-inning leadoff home run off Lerrin LaGrow that gave Montreal a 5-4 victory over Philadelphia Phillies, the Expos' first triumph of the season.

Ken Forsch scattered seven hits in 7 2-3 innings and drove in two runs with a second-inning single to lead Houston Astros over Los Angeles Dodgers 4-2.

Dave Winfield dropped a fly ball in right field that set up the winning run and Vida Blue scattered four hits in seven innings as San Francisco Giants defeated San Diego Padres 3-1.

In the American League, Jim Morrison's tie-breaking sacrifice fly followed by a two-run double by Lamar Johnson keyed a three-run seventh inning, leading Chicago White Sox to a 5-2 victory over Baltimore Orioles.

Willie Aikens delivered a bases-loaded single in the seventh inning to spark Kansas City Royals to a 3-2 win over Detroit Tigers.

Bruce Bochte and Bill Stein each drove in two runs, powering Seattle Mariners past Toronto Blue Jays 5-1 behind Floyd Bannister's eight-hitter.

Joe Rudi drove in three runs to lead California Angels to an 8-3 victory over Cleveland Indians. Mike Norris gave up only three hits and struck out 11 as Oakland A's beat Minnesota Twins 4-1.

Boston right-hander Bob Stanley checked Milwaukee on four hits and Carl Yastrzemski's run-scoring double keyed a three-run fourth as the Red Sox defeated the Brewers 3-1.

Jim Spencer's grand slam home run in the New York fifth led the Yankees to a 9-4 victory over Texas Rangers in the first game of a doubleheader and gave rookie manager Dick Howser his first American League triumph.

The Yankees completed a sweep of the doubleheader with an 8-2 victory in the nightcap as Ed Figueroa and Tom Underwood combined on an eight-hitter.

Immersion information

An information day on French immersion in public schools will be held at University of Victoria's Elliott building Saturday in co-operation with the Victoria chapter of Canadian Parents for French.

Registration will be at 8:30 a.m.

Easier pot deplored

B.C. Science Minister Dr. Pat McGeer has attacked the federal Liberal government for renewing a pledge to decriminalize marijuana.

He calls it irresponsible and a purely political move.

McGeer, a brain researcher of international repute, says all scientific evidence indicates marijuana is a dangerous drug.

He fears the federal move towards decriminalization might encourage young people to experiment with marijuana and hashish.

"The federal government is taking a step which might be misinterpreted by the young people in this country and it should be condemned for doing that."

McGeer suggests the Ottawa lawmakers are purposely ignoring scientific data on the effects of smoking pot.

"There is a great deal of difference between lawyers and scientists in this matter. I think they hope the scientific information will go away, but of course it won't."

The minister says he was told years ago by Middle Eastern drug experts at the United Nations that North Americans fail to realize it is marijuana, not heroin, that is the number one drug problem in the world.

The bidding:

West	North	East	South
3 ◊	Dble	Pass	4 ♡

Opening lead — king of diamonds.

This deal occurred in the 1972 World Olympiad. It was played at 18 tables, and at most of them South got to four hearts and went down one. This came about when West led the king of diamonds, partner showing out, and continued with the A-Q-J. It is hard to fault those declarers who ruffed the fourth diamond with the king and later lost a trump trick to the jack.

From their viewpoint, after West had shown up with six diamonds and East with none, it seemed far more likely that East would have the jack of hearts than West. East had 13 cards that might include the jack, while West had only 7.

Some declarers, after ruffing high in dummy, finessed the ten of hearts; others cashed the A-Q, hoping to fell the jack. But, either way, their hopes were dashed and they went down one.

The most remarkable outcome occurred when Belladonna and Avarelli, Italian stars, held the North-South cards. Their bidding went:

West	North	East	South
3 ◊	Dble	Pass	Pass
Pass

Even though Belladonna's double of three diamonds was for takeout, as in most systems, Avarelli elected to pass. This extraordinary action proved highly remunerative. Belladonna cashed the A-K of clubs, on which Avarelli discarded the 9-4 of spades in that order.

North thereupon led the ace and another spade, ruffed by South. Avarelli played the ace and another heart, won by North with the king, and Belladonna exited with the queen of clubs. Declarer thus scored only his six trump tricks, losing a further heart trick at the end, and the Italian pair registered a plus of 800 points on their ledger instead of a minus of 100.

FUN WITH FIGURES

By J. A. H. HUNTER

"It's only four digits," Larry declared. "Quite an easy number to remember."

His wife shook her head. "Maybe for you, but what's your gimmick?"

HOW TO WRITE

A GOOD

CLASSIFIED ACTION

AD

1—IT'S BEST to start your ad with the name of the article or service you have to offer. If you have an apartment, room, etc., for rent, or property for sale; start your ad with the location.

2—BE CLEAR. Readers respond more quickly and favorably by giving complete, definite information. Always include the price in your advertisement.

3—MAKE IT EASY for the reader-prospect to reach you. Always give your telephone number or your name and address. If you do not have regular hours, state a preferred time for the prospect to get in touch with you.

4—PLAY SAFE. You get the greatest reader attention by using consecutive insertions. A six-day order is best and costs less, and you can, of course, stop your ad as soon as you get the results you want. You pay only for the days your ad appeared. Lower yearly rates are available to those who wish to keep their services or products before the public.

5—PLACE YOURSELF in the reader's position and ask yourself what you want to know about your offer. The answer you give will make a good Want Ad.

6—GIVE YOUR PROSPECT every inducement you can with good copy. Classified action ad readers have the money and are already interested in buying the merchandise or service you have to offer; the details and information you give are the most important.

7—TO PLACE YOUR AD, call 386-2121, your direct line number to fast Want Ad action. A courteous, efficient advisor will be glad to help you word and place your order. And remember, Classified Action Ads afford you the most complete coverage. Telephones are open 8:00 a.m. to 6:00 p.m. Monday through Friday, 8:00 to 5:30 p.m. Saturday. Don't allow the reader to speculate.

The Lord is my Shepherd

I shall not want

He maketh me to lie
pastures

He restoreth my soul

He leadeth me in the path of righteousness for his name sake

Yea though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death

I will fear no evil

For thou art with me, thy rod and thy staff

before me in the
enemies

with oil

My cup runneth over

Surely goodness and mercy shall follow me all the days of my life and I will dwell in the House of the Lord

2,000 guard pope

TURIN, Italy (UPI) — Pope John Paul II, riding in an open jeep but guarded by a security force of more than 2,000, made the first papal visit to terrorist-wracked Turin in 165 years and decried the urban violence that has become a 20th century plague.

The visit Sunday to the northwestern city was the most security-tight papal trip ever in Italy and belittled an 11th-century prophecy that a pontiff of this century would be assassinated during violent times "in the city of two rivers."

But in the first papal visit to Turin since that of Pope Pius VII in 1815, John Paul rejected the offer of a bulletproof limousine for the motorcade and rode in his usual open jeep through streets jammed with more than 1 million people.

"Men kill in homes, in offices, in universities. If it is necessary to kill other men to change and better man and society ... then we have arrived at the point of canceling out man himself," John Paul said in an emotional homily before 35,000 people outside the Renaissance Cathedral of St. John.

"Armed men of the modern armies kill the defenseless and innocent. Incidents of this type have happened before, but today it has become a system," he said.

Because of its more than 6,000 factories, around which the Red Brigades and other terrorist groups have centered their attacks, Turin, probably Italy's clearest example of a city divided by class differences, has become fertile ground for violence.

During the past two years, terrorists have killed 14 people in Turin and wounded dozens of others, many of them industry or union leaders.

The Fiat automobile works, Italy's largest employer, has most of its factories in Turin and its managers, union leaders, and plants have suffered frequent terrorist attacks.

DIM JING is Chinese phrase which means to open the lion's eyes and this ceremony at the Chinese Consolidated Benevolent Association hall on Fisgard Street on weekend dates back thousands of years. Here Master Wong Sheung of the Wong Sheng Kung Fu Club paints the lion's eyes red to bring forth its vivid spirits. Victoria Chinatown Junior Lion Dancers, under the direction of Mrs. Daniel Bong, also participated in colorful ceremony.

Freeman finishes with flourish

By AUDREY JOHNSON

The final concerts of Victoria Symphony's 1979-80 season have made it clear that Maestro Paul Freeman has improved the orchestra beyond anyone's hopes and has provided probably the best-planned season in its history.

Through the months since the season opened in October, concentration has been mainly on the 18th and 19th centuries with interesting explorations of early Canadian and other unfamiliar works of the romantic period.

Now, fittingly, it closes with a celebration of 20th-century music. The excellent program presents the youthful works of four composers. All are, or were, in their 20s at the time of writing these works.

And the fact that one of these should be the piano concerto of Victoria composer Rod Sharman — who was 20 when he began its composition — adds distinction to the occasion and should be a matter of pride to everyone.

Even though the form and tonalities of this new music may seem unapproachable to many listeners, the fact is that it reveals powers of invention and originality that indicate a notable musical gift, with a lifetime ahead in which there will be much development.

In this connection it is well to consider the case of Richard Strauss, whose Death and Transfiguration opens the program. This music, written when Strauss was 26, was considered wildly avant garde, yet 49 years later it was acceptable to all concert goers as part of the conservative repertoire.

Sharman's concerto is sensitively played by Walter Prossnitz and the orchestra, reduced to classic proportions following the lavish instrumentation of the Strauss. Freeman conducts attentively, showing care for the transparent texture of much of the string writing.

There is little overlaying of orchestra and solo piano; the 11 episodes impress this listener as a dialogue — the kind of dialogue that is strikingly used by Pinter and certain other modern playwrights, where the references are oblique and seemingly disconnected. Nevertheless relationships exist and are subtly defined.

Prossnitz appears in the first half of the program performing Prokofiev's marvellously rhythmic and glowing Concerto No.1 in D flat Major. This was a distinguished performance that really deserved a standing ovation.

It is authoritative, technically of high virtuoso quality, clean, precise and vibrant in articulation. The tone produced is powerful enough to cut through often thick orchestration, yet always rich and musical. The poetry of the Andante assai movement is clearly expressed with fine phrase shaping.

Freeman's command of his orchestral forces and regard for the solo instrument is demonstrated throughout. The imbalance that appears now and then in crescendo passages is probably entirely related to the inappropriate acoustics, the result to a great extent, of an inadequate shell.

The sombre, dream-like opening of Death and Transfiguration is handled with a subtlity of tone and nuance that is powerfully mood-invoking while the development of the soaring finale transcends a not unflawed technical approach with its quality of inspiration.

But the program finale, the difficult, superbly picturesque tone poem, Respighi's Pine of Rome, provides a worthy culmination to Freeman's first season.

Under his powerful and passionate direction, the orchestra played Sunday as never before, each section proving much more than adequate to the challenge; the winds a delight, (with a particularly beautiful trumpet solo), the strings tunefully together, the percussion excellent.

The powerful climax, with part of the wind section playing from the theatre balcony, brought the audience to its feet in a thunderous ovation for Freeman and the incredible accomplishment of the orchestra.

Rangel has funds idea

If Victoria can't make up its mind about a convention centre, North Saanich Ald. Jay Rangel has a use for the funds.

In a letter to Provincial Secretary Hugh Curtis, Rangel asks that if the funds become available, they might go to building a new library for North Saanich and Sidney.

Rangel says the pesent library in Sanscha Hall is no longer adequate to meet the needs of the growing Saanich peninsula.

The right gloves

hilda beastall

Gloves have always been scorned by so-called "real" gardeners but during 40 years of garden and nursery work of all kinds in every type of weather I know their value.

The several pairs of garden gloves around the house are washed fairly often, not regularly, but just often enough for them to be a pleasnat surprise occasionally when found clean and soft again. Softer kinds of garden gloves are even mended in the early stages of holes.

It is the most worked fingers that become exposed to damage when the holes appear, and a good padding of yarn makes useful filler.

Gloves of different kinds have different uses in the garden. For screening compost through a framed wire mesh, I like either a discarded man's leather glove or a pair of the tougher kind of garden gloves that are fairly smooth on the insides. If the inside seams are hard, they will chafe the skin as the work proceeds, forming painful callouses.

Once a suitable pair is found, look after them; they can be used for all the rougher garden jobs that turn up. Putting up new wiring on a fence needs tough gloves, yet they must fit the hands comfortably so that the wire can be grasped for pulling taut. Buy another pair to have in stock as insurance against risk of not finding the same kind again.

The pruning of roses, berberises, pyrancantha or coniferous evergreens which have foliage that irritate the skin can be more pleasurably done if one is equipped with sturdy gloves, as well as sharp secateurs having a comfortable hand grip.

Picking up the pieces after pruning also needs thorn-proof gloves, but handling them for burning calls for tough ones which will resist heat from smouldering ends, yet handle the pitchfork equally well.

There is a soft, dark-brown garden glove of 100 per cent cotton, made in Canada that is almost an all-purpose glove. It is cosy in winter cold or rain when one is going around on various jobs.

Taking the compost pail almost daily to the compost heap needs the aid of a small shovel for scattering that good soil over each addition. And the pail must be rinsed out, which may entail getting splashes of water on the hands.

None of this is unpleasant in the worst of weather when the gardener is suitably equipped. You find yourself inclined to loiter around the plants to see what is new; and there is always something if you are warm enough to just "stand and stare."

Handling coldframe covers and burlap sack covers is much more easily done when the hands are covered. Splinters of wood sometimes take a lot of time to remove — and ceder splinters can irritate for days. Better to avoid them with these thick, yet soft and resistant gloves.

Cloche glasses are not easy to handle with gloves. The glass and the wire holders need the bare finger action for efficient operation. It had taken me years to get the knack of opening and closing the Chase continuous cloches, but now with bare hands I enjoy this job, too.

There is a white, rough-cotton glove ideal for summer use on jobs needing hand protection. These are cooler than the brown gloves previously mentioned.

Clumps of stiff grass leaves will saw annoying cuts on fingers and palms when weeding, and these gloves give a bare-handed grasp without the damaged skin.

Most annual weed seedlings can easily be dug out from cultivated ground with gloved fingers, thus both hands can work at once (almost) or at least alternately as the weeds are tossed into the waiting container.

UN troops shelled: Waldheim frets

UNITED NATIONS (Reuter) — UN Secretary Genral Kurt Waldheim asked the Security Council on Sunday to find a way to end the harassment of the UN Interim Force in Lebanon by the Lebanese Christian militias.

He made the appeal at a 10-minute meeting of the hurriedly summoned council.

Waldheim was the only speaker and the council, which had been asked by Lebanon last Thursday to meet on the situation in southern Lebanon, adjourned until 11 a.m. today.

Waldheim said the situation, which had been extremely tense for a week, on Sunday "deteriorated in such a way that I felt it my duty to inform the council and to ask its assistance in bringing an end to the intolerable aggravation and harassment which UNIFIL is experiencing."

He said all outgoing telephone lines from UNIFIL headquarters at Nakoura were cut Saturday and that during a two-hour period the Christian militia commanded by renegade Lebanese army Maj. Saad Haddad fired a total of 85 rounds of artillery, mortar and tank fire at the headquarters, including the medical compound.

Waldheim said the firing stopped after UNIFIL told the Israeli army liaison officer that unless the shooting ended, UNIFIL would fire on known Christian militia gun positions in the area. The Lebanese Christian militias are backed by Israel.

During the shelling, one UNIFIL soldier was wounded and all four of UNIFIL's helicopters were severely damaged, he said.

Meanwhile, Israel says its soldiers have withdrawn from southeast Lebanon.

An Israeli military spokesman said the soldiers which crossed into Lebanon last Wednesday "have completed their tasks and have left the area of south Lebanon."

The soldiers crossed the border two days after a Palestinian attack on a kibbutz in the northern panhandle in which three Israelis and the five terrorists were killed. A UN spokesman said the Israeli soldiers blocked some of the Palestinian infiltration routes into Israel and searched for terrorists. But there was no report that they found any or destroyed any Palestinian installations.

California shakes to moderate quake

HOLLISTER, Calif. (UPI) — A moderate earthquake, felt as far away as the San Francisco Bay area, shook central California Saturday night, but caused no serious damage or injuries.

The University of California seismology station at Berkeley said the temblor occurred at 10:15 p.m. PST and was measured at 4.7 on the open-ended Richter Scale.

Dr. Robert Uhrhammer, research seismologist at UC-Berkeley, said the quake occurred along the San Andreas Fault which has gained the reputation as the great earthquake "factory" of California. Hollister has gained the distinction of being the "earthquake capital" of the world.

604 Turks arrested

ISTANBUL (AP) — Turkish authorities on Sunday announced the arrests of 604 suspected terrorists and the seizure of arms caches. Meanwhile, at least 12 persons were killed in political violence over the weekend, police said.

Security officials said 101 of the jailed suspects, arrested in anti-terrorist operations throughout Turkey since March 26, will be charged with assassinating political rivals. They said the others would be accused of extortion, and various "terrorist acts."

During the raids, security agents also seized 305 pistols, 36 rifles, 42 shotguns, and hand grenades.

Ousted Liberians face trial

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

Liberia's new military rulers announced today that they are putting senior officials of the late President William Tolbert's regime on trial at once on charges of high treason, corruption, violation of civil and human rights and misuse of public office.

Radio Monrovia said a six-man military court named by the new president, Samuel K. Doe, a 28-year-old former master sergeant, was starting its work today, two days after Doe's coup in the West African country.

But the broadcast denied a report by Liberian diplomats in West Germany that the rebels beheaded Tolbert's son, A. B. Tolbert, who was considered a possible successor to his father.

Radio Monrovia said the younger Tolbert "is still at large and there is a search out for him."

The diplomats also reported that the rebels shot to death the late president's son-in-law, Defence Minister Burleigh Holder, and Justice Minister Joseph Chesson. Radio Monrovia made no mention of this report.

No resistance was reported in Monrovia, the capital. But diplomats there said the new government closed the borders and the airport, declared a dusk-to-dawn curfew and arrested a number of Tolbert's associates, including his wife, Victoria, and Chief Justice James Pierre.

Tolbert, 66, was reported shot to death early Saturday morning in an army assault on the presidential palace led by Doe.

Doe, unknown outside Liberia, proclaimed himself president and named a 19-member cabinet which includes seven soldiers and the leader of a banned leftist party who was jailed last month after a coup attempt.

Haitians swarm ashore in U.S.

MIAMI (UPI) — More than 700 Haitians swarmed ashore in nine boats in South Florida Sunday in a one-day record arrival of "boat people" from the Caribbean island.

Immigration and health services facilities were swamped and an appeal was made for emergency housing.

Immigration and Naturalization Service District Director Raymond Morris said, "We need some place to put them. All our transportation is out now. If you want to see a grown man cry, just come on over here."

INS regulations keep illegal immigrants impounded until each receives a medical examination and other processing. There is housing for 202 illegal immigrants at a federal prison southwest of Miami but it was filled Sunday.

Two boats landed at Miami Beach, each containing about 100 Haitians. Two more boats came ashore at West Palm Beach with a total of 164 Haitians. A boat landed at Haulover pier, between Miami Beach and Hollywood, with 122 men and women aboard. A 30-foot boat authorities said was almost falling apart landed at Fort Lauderdale with 109 men and women aboard.

A boat with 104 Haitians landed at Juno Beach in Palm Beach County. Thirty-seven came ashore at Bahia Honda in the Lower Keys. Fiftey-eight landed at the Hillsboro Inlet near Pompano Beach.

"The numbers are just bogging the system," said INS officer Leonard Roland.

Authorities said all of Sunday's arrivals appeared to be in good physical condition. However, some Haitians arriving in recent months have been found to have tuberculosis and venereal disease.

"We need some place to put them, to start processing and get them out. If you know of a large, empty building ...," said Morris.

Tunnel? 71% of respondents say NO!

Residents of lower Vancouver Island and the Gulf Islands place great store on retaining the "quality of life" in the region.

That was the predominant comment from readers who sent in ballots for the Times' survey on whether there should be a fixed link with the mainland — a tunnel or combination of bridges and tunnels — as proposed by Science Minister Pat McGeer and former Socred cabinet minister Sam Bawlf.

The proposal was turned down by 71 per cent of the respondents, 1,214 out of a total of 1,712 valid ballots. Of the 498 readers in favor, the most common comment was that it was "time for us to join the 20th Century" or words to that effect, followed by complaints about the long ferry waits and the difficulty of getting on and off the island.

While the quality of life argument was the strongest factor in the negative vote, judging from letters and notes accompanying the ballots, a strong feeling also surfaced that there were more important priorities for the provincial government to look after before spending billions of dollars on an fixed island-mainland link. Many readers, for instance, stated it was more important to improve health care, education, needs of elderly citizens. The safety factor was also mentioned by many people concerned about earthquakes or the possiblity of collisions in tunnels, or the chance of freighters ramming a floating bridge in heavy fog.

We asked readers to mail or bring in original ballots only and thus quite a few hundred written or duplicated ballots were not counted. This was done to minimize the risk of blocs of pro or anti factions from skewing the result of the poll. In fact, one batch of 40 ballots, all obviously duplicated on the same machine and all marked "no", was spotted. By a rough estimate, if duplicated ballots had been counted it would have raised the "no" vote to about 75 per cent, but it would not have been a fair representation of public opinion.

One amusing aspect of the vote counting was to note that about a dozen envelopes contained two ballots, one from husband and one from wife, who disagreed on the issue, indicating there may be a few good family arguments raging in Victoria over the issue.

The Times is very pleased with the strong response to this poll from readers and will forward the results to Premier Bill Bennett with the reminder that 1,712 people felt strongly enough about the issue to take the trouble to clip the coupon and spend money on postage, or take time to bring it in to our office.

ICBC chief quits

VANCOUVER (CP) — Robbie Sherrell, president and chief executive officer of the Insurance Corp. of B.C., announced today he is resigning for personal reasons, effective, May 31.

Sherrell said he plans to return to his home in Oklahoma to spend time with his family before looking for a new job.

"I'm not going to a corporation or leaving to go back to ITT (International Telephone and Telegraph) or Hartford," he told a news conference. "What I do plan to do is look into some personal activities, some personal investments, even a small business, perhaps."

The controversial American was hired two years ago by the provincial government, at an annual salary of $80,000.

Kramer runaway favorite

There are more than 6,000 entries in the annual Visit the Stars contest — and half of them are predicting a strong showing by Kramer vs. Kramer when the Oscars are handed out tonight.

About 3,000 of the entries have Kramer vs. Kramer as best movie, and its star Dustin Hoffman as best actor, along with Sally Field of Norma Rae as best actress.

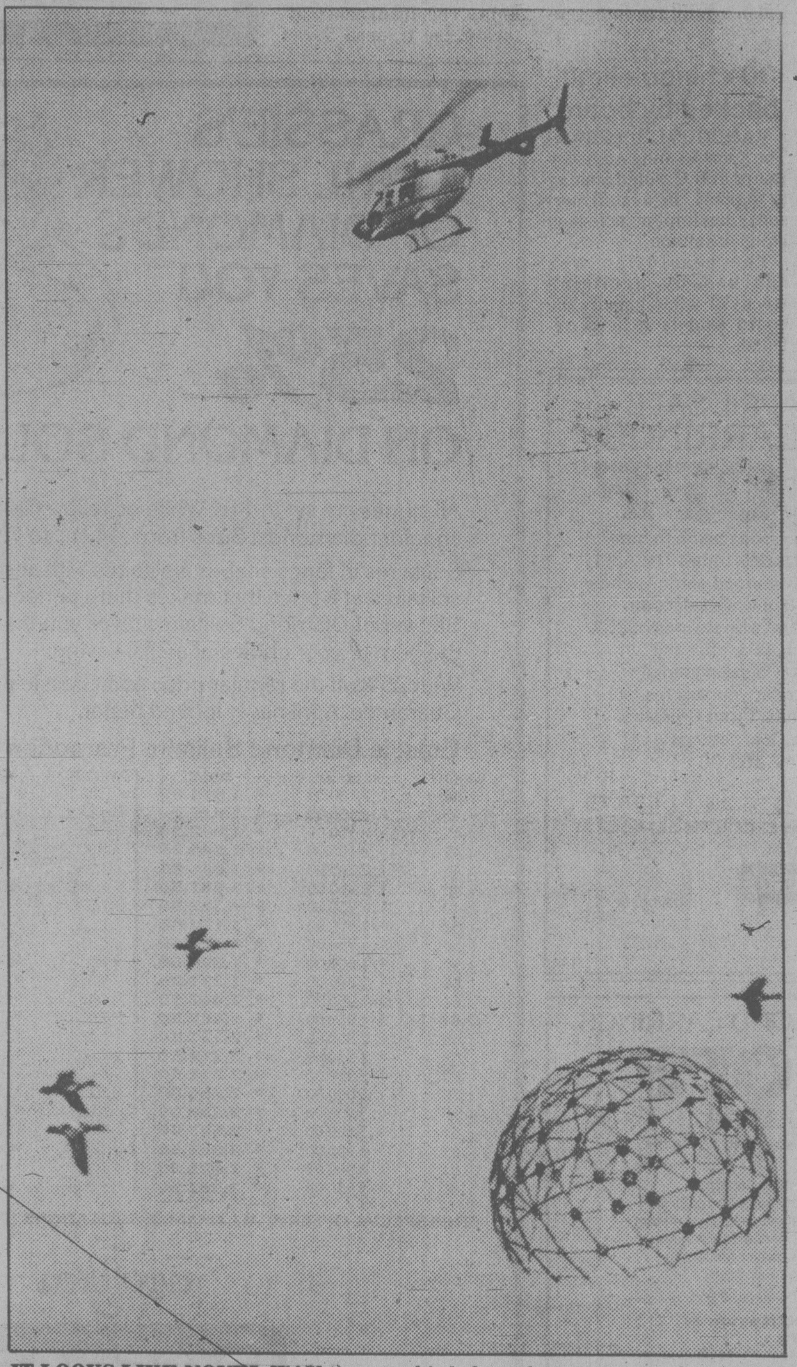
If any one of the three misses, there will only be a handful of correct entries in the barrel when the drawing for the grand prize is made at 7 p.m. Wednesday at the Odeon theatre.



IT LOOKS LIKE NOVEL WAY to snare birds but what appears to be a net is actually a 23-foot high geodesic frame for dome home built by Scott McIntosh, of 1752 Davie. Saturday was moving day and helicopter was used to transport dome from McIntosh's back yard to site over on Gabriola Island.

Help coming on loan rates

Highlights

Here are the highlights of the Speech from the Throne opening the 32nd Parliament:

— Homeowners hit by "unacceptably high interest rates" to get government help in renegotiating mortgages.

— Small businessmen and farmers to be eligible for increased low-interest government loans up to $100,000 from $75,000 and other unspecified assistance programs.

— Old-age income supplements for 1.3 million needy pensioners, most of them single women, to be increased by $35 a month from $153.35 by July 1. National Pension Conference to be held in the fall.

— Criminal penalties for simple possession of marijuana to be removed.

— "Made-in-Canada" oil price to be lower than world price; gasoline prices to consumers to be lower than those proposed by Joe Clark's Conservative government last December.

— Budget of Petro-Canada, the government-owned oil company, to be increased so it can buy oil directly from foreign countries.

— Fuel-efficiency standards to be set for automobiles to encourage energy conservation.

— Standards for home insulation to become more stringent to promote energy conservation.

— Half of petroleum industry in Canada to be owned by Canadians by 1990 under unspecified program of government incentives.

— Government to assist Canadians in buying out foreign-owned companies in this country as part of Liberal promise to promote economic nationalism.

— Post Office to be turned into Crown corporation, as proposed in Liberal legislation nearly two years ago.

— Government to work to defeat Quebec referendum on sovereignty-association and to interpret a "no" vote as a directive to rebuild Canadian federation. No word on what a "yes" vote would mean.

OTTAWA (CP) — The Trudeau government today promised help for homeowners hardest hit by "unacceptably high" interest rates and limited assistance to farmers, fishermen and small businessmen.

The speech from the throne opening the 32nd Parliament, read in the ornate Senate chamber by Gov.-Gen. Ed Schreyer, also contains a strong plea for national unity and a repeats pledges by earlier Trudeau governments for constitutional reform and greater Canadian control of the economy.

Specifics were lacking as, for the first time, the Liberal government did not hold a background briefing for reporters.

Opposition leader Joe Clark called it "a very interesting list" of proposals but criticized it for not promising fast action to introduce a budget.

"We will be pressing for a full statement on economic policy before the end of May," he said. The Liberals have indicated a budget may not come until the fall.

NDP leader Ed Broadbent said that in promising action on high interest rates and Canadian control of industry, the Liberals were merely addressing problems they had helped to create in the last decade.

"I have no more confidence now that they will do for the 1980s what they failed completely to do in the 1970s," he said.

He said it also appeared clear that help for higher interest rates would be extremely limited in scope. Tens of thousands of homeowners and small businessmen would get nothing, he said.

There is a special commitment to Quebecers that a vote in the coming sovereignty referendum rejecting sovereignty for that province would lead to constitutional reform.

The strongly-nationalistic speech also commits the new Liberal administration to tighter controls on the activities of foreign-owned companies .

Included in the legislative priorities of the Trudeau government is a $35-a-month increase in the guaranteed income supplement for about 1.3 million of the country's poorest pensioners — a promise made in the election campaign — from the current $153.35 a month.

And for the first time in a throne speech there is a renewed promise to remove criminal penalties for marijuana use.

In addition to home mortgage help, the government also promises the ceiling for lower-rate loans under the Small Business Loans Act as well as the Farm Improvement Loans Act will be raised to $100,000 and the loan ceiling under the Fisheries Improvement Loans Act will be raised to $150,000.

The Liberals also have apparently abandoned a goal of the previous Clark government to have energy self-sufficiency in Canada by 1990.

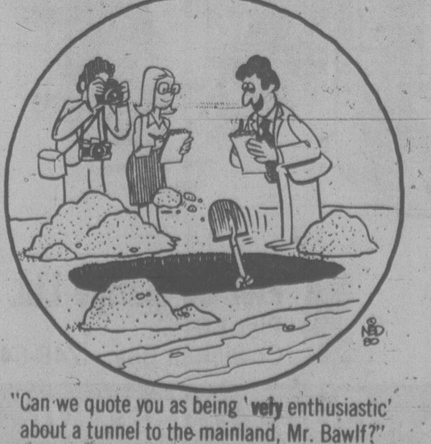
Dewey's World



"Can we quote you as being 'vely enthusiastic' about a tunnel to the mainland, Mr. Bawlf?"

Iran is 'ready for world war'

Times News Services

TEHRAN — Iran is "ready for a world war" if the United States starts one because of the American hostage crisis, says Hassan Habibi, spokesman for the ruling Revolutionary Council.

Habibi said in an interview carried by Radio Tehran today Iranians are not bothered by the threat of a world war because "we have the othar world" — an apparent reference to heaven. "God will feed us," he added.

Meanwhile, a group which included Red Cross representatives began a visit to American hostages in the occupied U.S. Embassy here. A student said the militant students holding the embassy were forced by the government to accept the Red Cross visitors.

If the U.S. is serious about world war, it should seriously consider whether it is worth surviving or not, Habibi said.

Iranians were confident in the other world but those who were skeptical about such a world should consider whether they wanted to destroy the earth.

Olympic boycott pushed

Time News Services

Fresh from a home-court victory, backers of a boycott of the Summer Olympics today turned their attention to an international effort to determine how many countries will join the United States and stay away from the Moscow Games.

The U.S. Olympic Committee supported President Carter and voted by a margin of 2-to-1 Saturday in Colorado Springs, Colo., not to field an Olympic team for the first time in modern history.

Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau's government is expected to announce its decision soon.

Dick Pound, president of the Canadian Olympic Association, said his group has decided to send a team to Moscow, and the ball now is in the Canadian government's court.

Douglas Roby, one of two Americans on the International Olympic Committee, said the organization responsible for the Games might cancel the competition if the U.S. wins the support of major states.

Other American athletes have expressed fears that the decision may kill the Olympic movement.

Albania, Honduras, China, Chile, Egypt, Haiti, Kenya, Malawi, Malaysia, Papua New Guinea, Sudan and Zaire have announced they will not attend the Games — some of them in support of Carter and some of them for anti-Soviet reasons of their own.

Others have indicated they will follow a U.S. lead and many European states are awaiting a pan-European stand.

"If they can get the important ones, it is my opinion the IOC will cancel the Games," said Roby, mentioning Britain, France, West Germany, Australia, New Zealand and Canada. "The IOC doesn't want to see any half-baked Games."

New Zealand opposes a boycott, and the British Olympic Association, despite strong government support for Carter, has decided to field a team. But Australian Prime Minister Malcolm Fraser said he believes an effective boycott will emerge.

The fielding of teams is left to the national Olympic committees, which are independent and responsible only to the IOC.

The New York Daily News, quoting unnamed sources, reported today that the National Broadcasting Co. will announce today or Tuesday that it will drop its planned coverage of the Summer Olympic Games in Moscow. Jim Murray, a publicist for NBC, would neither confirm nor deny the report.

Report raps poor tourism planning

By NORMAN GIDNEY

A special report on B.C.'s tourism industry criticizes the provincial government for failing to plan ahead.

It also knocks the poor quality of tourist accommodation and services in much of the province.

The confidential study by three Vancouver consulting firms says if tourism is to keep on growing in the province, then the industry will have to alter its present emphasis on the "rubber tire" market and the automobile-oriented tourist.

Nothing less than a major shift in government policy and the way private tourist businesses operate are recommended in the report for the next 20 years.

The study says that the government has not given tourism the attention it deserves.

It says government has shunted the tourism portfolio from ministry to ministry, deprived it of staff and had it concentrate mostly on research, marketing and promotion while neglecting long-term planning and development.

It also has some uncomplimentary things to say about the quality of tourist accommodation and services in parts of the province. After noting that most attractions and tourist destinations are on Vancouver Island or in the southwestern corner of B.C., it states:

"The accommodation base of the remainder of the province with the exception of the regional urban centres such as Kamloops and Prince George, can best be described as fragmented, unorganized, and substandard in relation to other competing areas in North America.

"Similarly the visual appeal of several urban centres throughout the province is very low due to haphazard or poorly planned main highway routes. A greater degree of planning control of visual and aesthetic factors will be required, especially in those towns and cities wishing to maintain or attract tourism industry development."

The report also says that staff of Tourism B.C., the government department concerned with the travel industry, have not paid much attention to the need for resource planning and development.

"Traditionally, this attitude is typical of virtually all government tourism organizations.

Harbor tours go a long way back

Q. I'd like to know when the Inner Harbor excursion boats started running to the Gorge and back. Have they been discontinued? L.S.H.

A. They started a long way back and they're still running.

We're told there were boats transporting passengers in the harbor even before streetcars came to Victoria in 1890. One of the most famous of these was Captain Troop's sternwheeler which churned the waters around 1908. These boats primarily provided transportation, not sightseeing.

In 1949 Bud Sims began the forerunner of a summer business that still operates.

With only one small boat, he began taking passengers on tours which included the Gorge waterway and Esquimalt naval base.

In those days the charge for the one-hour trip was $1. Sims sold the business in 1972. The service is now operated by Marcel Fisher and the tour still originates from the wharf in front of The Empress.

They begin in early May and continue until October. The trip costs $2 for children and $5 for adults.

It all began with a squeal

By PAUL MINVIELLE

Ask Helen Simpson-Baikie about the early days of the Bastion Theatre and she'll tell you about the time she auditioned a pig.

Now executive-director of Bastion Theatre, Simpson-Baikie recalled the trip to a Saanich farm to check out a particular porker's acting ability.

She was stage director then and the play, Three Parts Benedict, called for the pig — it didn't have any lines — to simply run across the stage.

Never one to shirk her duty, Simpson-Baikie decided she should establish a closer relationship with the young animal actor so she climbed into the pen — and quickly out again as the porker made a run at her.

When they finally got the pig to the theatre for a rehearsal, it began rushing madly about the stage and finally fell — with piercing, porcine screams — into the orchestra pit.

The compassionate stage director, fearing the pig was hurt, began crying.

"That pig was a damned nuisance," Simpson-Baikie recalled but smiled as she said it.

Her recollections of Bastion's growing pains came as the theatre group celebrates its 10th season as a professional troupe, although it can trace its history back to amateur days in 1963.

To mark the occasion, April has been dedicated Bastion Theatre Month in Victoria by Mayor Bill Tindall.

But Bastion is anything but local.

Its travelling troupe, which gave 19 shows in Victoria schools in its first season, is just finishing the last of 208 performances all around the province in the 1979-80 season.

Mime and comedy have been brought to such places as the Gulf and Coast islands, Anahim Lake and Alexis Creek, Port Hardy, Tofino, Ucluelet and Bamfield.

Simpson-Baikie was part of those first plays for children.

"What they're doing now is wonderfully satisfying to me," she said.

When you delve into the beginnings of Bastion Theatre, you never know where you're going to end up.

Simpson-Baikie's father was a British Army officer escaping Russia and the Bolshevik Revolution.

In Baluchistan on India's Northwest Frontier he met another refugee, a White Russian woman. They married and later, in Quetta, Helen was born.

She grew up in exciting times, moving about the Middle and Near East as Japan rolled over southeast Asia. She was in Iraq when she met and married William Simpson-Baikie.

He had been interned in Japan and released on a diplomatic exchange.

His fluent Japanese won him a spot on British radio beaming propaganda at Japan.

Helen was also in radio and as Japan crumbled, the couple moved east to India and Malaya, helping to restore communications in war-torn areas. Their daughter was born in New Delhi, their son in an Army hospital in Singapore.

So what does all this have to do with Bastion?

In its way, Helen Simpson-Baikie's intriguing family history has become a part of Bastion, one tiny tile in the mosaic of backgrounds on which the success of the theatre company was built.

Bastion's theatre school used to handle 150 would-be thespians a year.

There are now 120 or so students for the sessions in each of the four seasons.

Simpson-Baikie's start with Bastion was definitely dramatic.

She had signed up for theatre lessons but when Ramona McBean was called out of town, Simpson-Baike was tagged for the roles of the Red Queen and Dormouse.

"I was tossed into the middle of everything," she said. "Not the best way to learn but we all did learn."

Now executive-director of Bastion Theatre, Helen Simpson-Baikie has some fond memories of the troupe's beginnings in the former Hope Lutheran Church located at Princess and Chambers.

In those days, everybody had a hand in everything, from sewing costumes, designing posters and fireproofing burlap bags used in making stage sets.

The pig wasn't the only difficult moment, but Bastion players never lost their aplomb.

There was the time, for instance, that Margaret Martin, wearing a hat with a lot of feathers, was bobbing her head to and fro.

On one bob, she leaned too close to a candle on a table and the feathers caught fire.

Simpson-Baikie leaned forward and calmly snuffed the flaming feathers with her fingers. No one missed a beat or a line.

And that's the stuff of Bastion tradition.

Strathcona fee hike under fire

Three Mt. Douglas Secondary School teachers, their principal and a former school trustee have rallied against Education Minister Brian Smith's suggestion for higher fees for outdoor education at Strathcona Lodge.

Outdoor and environmental education teacher Bill Conconi is asking Greater Victoria school board to help persuade the ministry to restore what he called proper financing to avoid forcing the lodge on Buttle Lake to raise student fees.

Smith's proposal would raise student costs by 50 per cent, Conconi said.

The ministry's support fell to $50,000 this year from $140,000 in 1974, Conconi said in a letter signed by teachers Monty Fulton and Earl Hockin and principal Wallace Russell.

The board also has a copy of a letter from ex-trustee Daphne Temple to Smith expressing amazement at the thought of a fee increase that might discourage use of the lodge's physically and mentally stimulating program.

"Instead, the government should be encouraging all schools to participate in what Strathcona Park has to offer — an experience of a lifetime," Temple said.

Strathcona Lodge is a non-profit institution offering wilderness and survivial training for students and members of the public. It also provides teacher upgrading.

Between February and May this year the lodge has scheduled courses for 50 public and private schools, including five in Greater Victoria.

Conconi said the last time Mt. Douglas students took a four-day course the cost per student was $65, not counting extras.

He said the remote location provides a rural experience with students living and learning together 24 hours a day "away from cars, radios, TV and junk food."

Assistant deputy minister R.J. Carter told Temple Strathcona had been absorbing one-quarter of the ministry's small annual grant fund for outside organizations for the past four years. At the same time, the lodge has been operating at a deficit, he said.

James Bay group gets land

The James Bay Multilevel Care Society has been given land valued at $350,000 between Toronto and Simcoe streets for construction of a 70-bed intermediate-care facility.

The land was owned by the province.

Both the federal and provincial governments will be involved in funding the project.

Sprinkler snuffs blaze

Firemen say a sprinkler system prevented a fire at Sooke Forest Products sawmill from spreading shortly before 1 a.m. today.

Sooke volunteer firefighters had the blaze out within minutes and spent almost an hour mopping up.

Sooke fire chief Lorne Fisk said the fire was probably started by an electrical short-circuit.

Damage was minimal.

McKERNAN

HIND

By AL FORREST

Wide-open Sunday shopping is an idea whose time has not yet come as far as Victoria is concerned, local merchants said today.

"We're certain to have it some day but I don't think Victoria is quite ready for it," said Bay manager Cam Young.

"Victoria is a little different than other communities."

He was commenting on legislation introduced by the provincial government allowing municipalities to bring in their own Sunday shopping bylaws.

"Wide-open Sunday shopping is about 10 to 15 years premature for Victoria," Young said.

"I am siding with my staff and the community in general on this question."

He said the pleasant atmosphere of the city would be disrupted by a shopping rush.

"But it will come some day."

Eaton's manager Reginald Hind holds a similar view.

"I'm not convinced wide open shopping on Sunday is needed yet although I know it would be a success if it happened. Americans go shopping on Sundays and the stores are full.

"They look upon it as an entertainment. They go browsing, have some ice cream and chat with their friends. Sunday shopping is a social occasion."

Hind said Sunday shopping might be appropriate in Victoria during the peak of the tourist season when visitors are looking for something to do.

In Esquimalt, merchants have pretty well solved the question already, said Don Scott, manager of Esquimalt Plaza Pharmacy.

"We have four businesses open in the plaza on Sunday but the rest want to stay closed. It works out fine. There doesn't seem to be any problem, although possibly there should be a referendum on the issue."

Jack McKernan, manager of Hillside Shopping Centre on the Victoria-Saanich border, said the merchants he has talked to believe that all levels of government should step aside and let store owners solve the problem.

"It's a matter of economics," he said. "No store will stay open if there's no money in it."

He predicted some stores would decide to stay closed on Sunday because of premium pay scales for employees.

"For example, Safeway has been opening on Sunday but, for a long time, they didn't open the Hillside Safeway because there was little demand.

On the other hand, he said, Beaver Lumber had a big crowd on Sunday and was obviously responding to a community need.

"I was working in the garden on Sunday and my shovel broke. So I went to Beaver to buy a new one. That's why I went shopping."

If governments must get involved in Sunday shopping, McKernan said, it should have been done on a regional basis.

"It will be a real hodge podge if they have separate votes in each municipality."

In Saanich, a spokesman for Woolco said there has been no pressure there for Sunday shopping.

A spokesman for K Mart declined comment.

Parents protest grading method

Letter grading is not good for children, a group of Victoria school parents has told the education ministry.

A submission from Nel van Elsakker, president of the South Park Family School Parents Association, notes that reporting is meant to summarize a child's performance and ability to show his weaknesses, strengths and means of improvement.

"We feel very strongly that letter grades will not accomplish this," van Elsakker said in a letter to the superintendent of public instruction. A copy was forwarded to School District 61 and trustees were to deal with it at their meeting tonight.

The writer also said grading as proposed will encourage peer competition rather than personal achievement.

"Nowhere does the administative draft deal with the emotional and social impact of grades which can in effect decrease motivation and interfere with learning."

Competition becomes the motivator instead of learning, but for some the result is defeatism, van Elsakker said.

The parents want more consideration in the lastest administrative handbook for public schools.

Van Elsakker' submission questions the handbook's section on pupil evaluation and reports for the impact it may have on children.

District superintendent Allan Stables observed in a report to trustees there are three significant areas of concern on which there has been professional but little public input: letter grading, increased course requirements in Grades 11 and 12, and re-introduction of compulsory math 11.

The manual could reduce time in English instruction for junior levels, and does not increase time devoted to English elsewhere, Stables said.

He said the handbook puts more emphasis on secondary education than on elementary, and by trying to draw every aspect of education together into a single bible for administrators, it will inhibit local change.

Nonetheless, Stables finds the draft an improvement over previous administrative manuals.

Rescue unit for Ganges

The Canadian Coast Guard will have a year-round unit in Ganges Harbor starting in late May or early June.

A 41-foot launch, capable of a maximum estimated speed of 20 knots and a cruising range of 350 miles, will be used.

Frank Wilkins, now officer in charge of the coast guard's Kitsilano base, will become officer in charge of the new six-man unit.

Wilkins said today the unit will fill a service gap from Sidney to Active Pass. He said the unit will also be first in line for use in oil spills and tending navigational aids.

The new unit will replace the Zodiac inflatable rescue vessel and crew which has been stationed there the past two summers.

Wilkins said she now has a cabin in the stern which will have to be removed so that people can be rescued from the water at the stern of the boat.

She is powered with twin turbocharged diesel engines each producing 260 horsepower.

Whonnock head joins West Fraser

VANCOUVER (CP) — Chester Johnson is moving from the presidency of Whonnock Industries Ltd. to the same position with West Fraser Timber Co. Ltd.

Johnson announced his resignation from Whonnock at a shareholders meeting on March 21. He said in an interview Friday that he likely will start at West Fraser in June.

He replaces Doug Johnston, who resigned on Feb. 29.

High interest rate crisis killing small business

TORONTO (CP) — Record high interest rates are creating a bleak future for small businesses, says Geoffrey Hale, a director of the Canadian Organization of Small Business.

Hale said in an interview that business bankruptcies are about 16 per cent higher than last year.

"If you extrapolate those figures for the whole year, you could see about 10 per cent of all businesses in Canada going under this year," he said.

"In Ontario alone, we expect to see some 10,000 firms collapse under the weight of double-digit interest rates."

Small business is defined as companies with annual sales of less than $2 million. The owner of one such business, Cedar Heights Home Hardware in Toronto, said he worries that his company cannot stay afloat because of dizzying interest rates on bank loans.

James Theodoro, who founded the store in 1975, said, "I'm being squeezed both ways — by the banks who help finance my inventory and by my suppliers who are adding interest charges to bills that aren't paid by the end of the month."

Theodoro said he usually takes out bank loans of about $110,000 a year and last year interest payments cost him $9,000. This year, with the prime rate charged by banks at 17.5 per cent, he expects to pay about $16,500 in interest.

Add to that the extra interest charges his suppliers are demanding on bills unpaid in 30 days and his total extra interest charges in 1980 will be about $25,000.

Theodoro said his sales target for this year was $1 million, up from $650,000 last year, but "that's now gone by the wayside."

Andy Silvester, head of ESE Sports Ltd. of Toronto, which supplies sports goods to retailers, said, "We are being forced to press our customers for early payment because we, like them, are up against a cash squeeze."

"We need money quickly because we have to pay our U.S. and European suppliers way ahead of time. If we don't get paid by our suppliers promptly we have to go to the bank — and that's very expensive."

Silvester said he thinks many small companies will go bankrupt this year and many of his customers are operating "just to pay the interest on their loans."

The Canadian Association of Small Business is lobbying the federal government for a 200-per-cent tax break on interest payments by small businesses, Hale said.

"That means if a company is paying $10,000 a year in interest, double that — or $20,000 — should be an allowable expense against profits."

But John Bulloch, president of the Canadian Federation of Independent Business, said he does not expect small business can expect significant tax breaks in the coming federal budget.

New York

Stock prices fell on the New York stock market Monday as recession fears mounted and a U.S. government official predicted the trade deficit will increase this year.

Treasury Secretary G. William Miller said it will be "difficult" for the United States to match 1979's small trade deficit because the bill for imported oil will total $85 billion to $90 billion, up from about $60 billion last year.

A mild rally last week had been mounted on hopes of a peak in interest rates had been reached, but analysts said investor attention appeared to have turned to the prospect that a recession may be here, and with it a decline in corporate profits. U.S. government figures to be released later in the week are expected to provide a better indication of the economy's fate.

Utility stocks, strong last week on hopes of a peak in interest rates, were generally down. Puget Sound Power and Light fell ½ to $13⅞ and Consumers Power ⅜ to $17⅝. But American Telephone and Telegraph was unchanged at $50⅛.

London

The London stock market was higher near the close of steady trading Monday.

The Financial Times index rose 3.2 to 438.8.
